Cease-fire may begin by Friday

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger arrived here today en route home from his 33-day marathon peace mission, and a senior American official said the cease-fire agreement he mediated between Israel and Syria would take effect as soon as it is signed on Friday.

Before leaving Jerusalem, the American secretary of state told newsmen the pact may become "a turning point in the history of the Middle East."

The senior official, talking to newsmen as the Kissinger party flew here to report to President Anwar Sadat on the accord, said wounded prisoners of war would be exchanged within 24 hours of the signing in Geneva.

As part of the agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces in the Golan Heights, the official said, Israel would give up the Golan city of Quneitra and six or seven villages taken in the 1967 war, as well as land gained last October.

The U.S. official said Israel would retain possession of three strategic hills and all of its settlements, but will yield about "a field and a half" of cultivated land east of the disengagement line.

The text of the accord distributed to newsmen gives Syrian and Israeli negotiators until Wednesday to work out details of the troop separation in the Golan Heights.

Actual disengagement is to begin by next Thursday and completed by June 25. All of the remaining 73 Israeli and 408 Syrian, Moroccan and Iraqi prisoners are to be repatriated by Thursday.

In a protocol accompanying the agreement, Israel and Syria agreed that the U.N. peacekeeping force will number about 1,250 men and will carry out regular inspections.

But the force is not to hamper the Syrian civil administrators who will move into the demilitarized zone between the separated armies.

Announcement of the Syrian-Israeli agreement Wednesday did not halt fighting in the Golan Heights, and the Syrian command reported the 80th consecutive day of shelling there.

Premier Golda Meir was presenting the pact to the Israeli parliament today, and Information Minister Shimon Peres said it was expected to pass despite opposition from the right-wing Likud bloc.

Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir might resign immediately after a favorable vote, turning over the government to Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin.

The break-through in reaching agreement came Tuesday when Israel dropped its insistence that the pact incorporate written guarantees against Palestinian terrorist infiltrators from Syria.

In exchange for the crucial concession, Israel reportedly got an American pledge that Israeli retaliation against terrorist attacks would be "understood" in

Plane crashes, burns

BLODGETT — Bill Long, 45, of Cape Girardeau was injured at 11 a.m. today when the Piper Pawnee crop dusting plane he was flying crashed and burned shortly after takeoff from Holyfield Airport on Route H near here.

The plane went down on the R. P. Householder farm seven miles north of Sikeston.

"I don't see how he got out," said Jim Foster of Vanduser who saw the plane crash from Interstate 55. He said the plane burst into flames as soon as it hit the ground.

Long was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. Scott County Sheriff's Deputy Bud Jones said Long received burns and a possible concussion.

The plane reportedly failed to gain altitude after taking off and nosedived into the ground. The plane was carrying a full load of ammonium nitrate fertilizer to be spread on the W. P. Hunter farm.

The plane was owned by Ag-Air Inc. of Sikeston.

Witnesses said Long tore off his burning clothes and fled the fire as soon as he was able to climb out of the plane.

The fire burned several acres of land before being extinguished by the Miner fire department.

2 children killed in Bootheel area

Two children were killed and five persons were injured in six area traffic accidents Wednesday, according to the highway patrol.

Sid Ashley Patrick, a 22-month-old East Prairie child, was killed about 6:45 p.m. when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Bertha Viola Terry, 38, of East Prairie.

The accident occurred when the child ran across Kirkendall Street to retrieve a ball. He had been playing in the yard at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Nelson.

A view inquest was held Wednesday night by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle, who ruled that the child died of a fractured skull.

The boy was born July 30, 1972 in Sikeston to Mr. and Mrs. Sid Patrick of East Prairie, who survive.

Also surviving are his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick of East Prairie.

Friends may call at McMikle Funeral Home in East Prairie, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday.

Burial will follow in Dogwood Cemetery.

Angel Robinson, 4, of Hayti was killed at 6:30 p.m. one-half mile east of Hayti on Highway 84 when she ran in front of a parked vehicle into the path of a car driven east by Danny Jones, 25, of Caruthersville.

A Van Buren truck driver was seriously injured at 3:30 p.m. on Highway 34 in Wayne County four miles west of Patterson when his tractor-trailer rig overturned in a road ditch.

A spokesman for the highway patrol said the road had just been resurfaced and the trailer edged off the pavement.

The driver, Cline Christopher Barter, 29, suffered serious injuries and was taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Phillip Shepard, 20, of Neelyville was seriously injured at 9:55 p.m. on Highway 67 at Neelyville when his car struck the side of a truck driven by Ira B. Rothenhoefer, 35, of Neelyville.

The patrol said the Shepard car was attempting to turn right from Highway 142 and crossed the center line when the accident occurred.

Shepard was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Two persons were injured in an accident at 10:40 p.m. one mile west of Morehouse on Highway 60.

The accident happened when a car driven east by Clarence Dewey Minton, 60, of Poplar Bluff attempted to make a left turn and was struck by a westbound car driven by Charles Richard Baumann, 18, of Heber Springs, Ark.

Lorene Baltimore, 62, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in the Minton auto, was seriously injured, and Jewell Bryan, 69, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in the Baumann auto, received minor injuries.

Both were taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital.

A one-vehicle accident at 1:45 p.m. two miles north of Steele on Highway 61 resulted in minor injuries to Edward Lee Blankenship, 26, of Blytheville, Ark.

He was taken to Chickasawba Hospital in Blytheville.

Williams convicted of assault, robbery

CHARLESTON — Charles Williams, 31, of New Madrid was convicted of felonious assault and armed robbery Wednesday by an all male Circuit Court jury presided over by Judge Marshall Craig.

The jury deliberated about 30 minutes before returning a guilty verdict and assessing Williams' punishment in the change of venue case from New Madrid County at two years in the State Department of Corrections on the assault charge and 12 years on the robbery charge.

The charges against Williams were in connection with the Dec. 4, 1973 assault with a gun on Willie Hardin, 68, of rural New Madrid and the armed robbery of the D. C. Barry Grocery and Service Station near Kewanee.

Robert Ross, 23, of San Diego, Calif. and formerly of New Madird, was sentended May 23 to 55 years in the State Department of Correction by Judge Craig on the same charges. Trial for Calvin Ross, 23, of St. Louis, charged with the same offenses, is scheduled for June 5. The three men also face similar charges in Stoddard County.

Judge Craig granted a request from Williams' attorney for 30 days in which to file a motion for a new trial and set July 9 as the date for ruling on the motion and sentencing.

Witnesses called by Hal E. Hunter, prosecuting attorney of New Madrid County, included D. C. Barry, owner of the grocery; Willie Hardin, who was left in charge of the business on the day the robbery occurred; Willie Glispie of Sikeston Route Four, a bus driver for the State School for Retarded Children in Sikeston, who was also assaulted with a gun after he stopped his bus at the Barry store; Dr. Thomas Pinkstaff of Sikeston, who treated Hardin at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston; Bob E. Bird of New Madrid, who witnessed the car speeding away from the grocery store;

Herman Maxwell of New Madrid Route One, who observed the three men shortly after their car struck a banister on the overpass of Route P and Interstate 55; the Rev. Donald Edwards of Kennett and formerly of Wolf Island, who picked the three men up on I-55 after they asked to be taken to a hospital; Virgil "Flip" Dees, deputy sheriff of New Madrid County, who investigated the robbery and the automobile accident; Mark Pellum of Jefferson City, a lab technician at the crime laboratory of the highway patrol; Cpl. Benny Rapert of the highway patrol and Joe Ross of New Madrid, a brother-in-law of Williams.

There were no defense witnesses called.

During his closing arguments, Hunter described Williams as a "lookout, or wheel man" and a man who was known locally, explaining why he did not enter the store during the robbery. He placed Williams in the same category as the other men since he took part in the planning of the robbery and shared in the proceeds.

In other action Wednesday, Judge Craig denied probation and sentenced Leslie Keene, 27, of East Prairie to two years in the State Department of Correction on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Decree of dissolution were granted the following: Ida Ella Johnson and Paul Embro Johnson, with custody of six children being awarded Mrs. Johnson; Linda Darelen Howard and Samuel Preston Howard; Cynthia Dale Bryant and Larry Michael Bryant; Ruby Mae Irby and Homer Louis Irby; Arnold Beldon Lay and Naomi Lay; and James M. Moriarty and Beverly A. Moriarty.

Staffs named at pools

As temperatures begin rising this time of year, youngsters begin getting visions of cool water splashing around and become anxious for classes to end and area swimming pools to open.

The Sikeston Country Club swimming pool opened Monday, on the Memorial Day holiday, and the Jaycee Public Swimming Pool will open at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Lifeguards at the Country Club pool, which is open to members and guests from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily through the summer months, are Lee Clayton and Bill Colwick.

The Jaycee pool will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. daily and will be managed by Bruce Barnes. Assistant manager will be Mary Lynn Caldwell.

Fire damages Madrid home

NEW MADRID — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed O'Herin at 914 Davis St. was extensively damaged by fire at 2:40 p.m Wednesday. The fire erupted in a garage near the house and a brisk wind caused the flames to quickly spread to the rear of the house.

There was considerable smoke and water damage to the front part of the house.

Cause of the fire has not been determined. However, Mrs. O'Herin said she had seen several children earlier in the garage where boat gas was stored and had asked them to leave.

The fire department was at the scene until about 4 p.m. and was recalled at 3:45 a.m. today when rubble blazed up.

HELP THE
SMALL BUSINESSMAN

One important distinction between our society and some totalitarian societies is that here a man is free to begin, operate and — if he's fortunate — make money at a small business.

The economic impact of America's small businesses is enormous. Small businesses comprise 98 per cent of the country's total business units, employ 65 per cent of the nation's nongovernmental work force, and produce about 50 per cent of the U. S. gross national product.

Although thousands of small businesses fail each year for various reasons, the challenges of being your own boss continue to prove irresistible to millions of independent - minded Americans. These small businessmen are extremely important to the social as well as the economic fabric of the country Together, they foster a healthy climate in which competition helps assure that consumers get the best possible goods at the lowest possible prices.

In short, owners of small businesses have done a lot for us. Now there are a couple of things we as a nation ought to do for them.

In 1960, small- and medium- sized manufacturing firms had 50 per cent of this sector's assets and 41 per cent of its profits. By 1972 they had dwindled to only 33 per cent of the assets and 28 per cent of the profits. Recent studies have also shown that small- and-medium - sizes business pay taxes at twice the rate paid by big U. S. corporations — 51 per cent agains 26.9 per cent.

Two bills that experts believe would significantly help small businessmen compete are now before Congress. One of them, the Federal Paperwork Relief Act (H.R. 12269), is designed to relieve small businesses of some of the costly and time - consuming work required to fill out numerous mandatory Federal forms. The second bill, entitled the Small Business Tax Simplification and Reform Act (Evins- Bible Bill) would create a Federal committee to revise and simplify our tax system, and would reduce tax rates for firms earning less than $1 million in receipts a year.

We urge Congress to pass both of these bills. Small businessmen have done a lot for us. Let's do something for them.

Thursday is Memorial Day. A day we Americans set aside to pay respect to our loved ones who have passed on, with special emphasis toward the war dead who made the supreme sacrifice.

Our churches and veteran organizations hold special services in memory of these men and women. We tell the war dead that they are remembered. And again we renew our promise that they will not have died in vain as we search for a lasting peace following the cease- fire in Vietnam.

While there is turmoil and injustice in the world despite efforts of the past three decades to bring world order, America must continue its leadership to meet the challenges ahead.

We must keep the faith with ourselves and those Americans we honor.

But Congress has said Monday, May 27 is the official Memorial Day.

A local reader of the Benton County Enterprise of Warsaw, brought in a clipping describing how one tells the difference between a Republican and a Democrat. During these days of earth-shaking seriousness in the world of politics, we thought it might not be a bad idea if we took time out for a smile, giggle, laugh or even a guffaw. It might be at our own expense, or those of the other party, depending on whether you have a sense of humor or you belong to that type of person who can see nothing funny whenever it is about him or his party. We call this last classification, "The external childishness of the narrow American adult."

Democrats buy most of the books that have been banned somewhere. Republicans form censorship committees and read them as a group.

Republicans consume three-fourths of all the rutabaga produced in this country. The remainder is thrown out.

Democrats name their children after currently popular sports figures, politicians and entertainers. Republicans children are named after their parents or grandparents, according to where the m ost money is.

Republicans tend to keep their shades drawn, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Democrats ought to, but don't.

Most of the stuff you see alongside the road has been thrown out of car windows by Democrats.

UNLIMITED ENERGY
A FATAL TOY?

An organization called the Committee for Electricity-Unlimited is promoting a letter- writing campaign to members of Congress, the Atomic Energy Commission and other government officials to urge that the nation institute a crash program into the development of energy from hydrogen fusion.

Many scientists, it says, foresee in this technology "the millenium for civilization" — an inexhastible supply of energy, with no pollution or dangerous wastes.

An editorial in a recent issue of National Wildlife magazine, in the form of an open letter to the President, makes the same call, along with similar programs in solar and geothermal power.

Just 1/200th of an ounce of deuterium found in a gallon of water, could, in a controlled fusion reaction, produce as much energy as 300 gallon of higher - octane gasoline. Nuclear fusion can be a reality by the year 2000, says the editorial, or sooner if the nation puts as much effort into it as it did with the Manhattan (atomic bomb) Project or the moon landing.

But while many scientists may see a millenium on the one hand, and on the other a period of severe economic and political dislocation if these "ultimate" energy sources are not harnessed in time, at least one scientist is fearful that men may succeed too well and too soon.

All life, points out University of California entomologist Bernd Heinrich, is constrained by the "carrying capacity" of its environment. Primitive hunter man, existing at the top of the food chain, was kept to a small population because the energy available to him was extremely limited.

Man later learned to farm and to utilize energy near the bottom of the chain where it was being captured from the sun by plants. His numbers increased enormously.

Next he learned to tap the stored energy of photosynthesis in the fossil fuels. Eventually this made possible the industrial revolution and helped to create the modern population explosion.

"Man presently has available, and is using, more energy than he or any other species has ever had before," says Henrich. "Yet we think we have not enough and we are clamoring for more, claiming that we are in an 'energy crisis.'"

An unlimited supply of energy has never been available to us or to any other species in the history of the earth, he says. Its gradual release over the decades could, in an insidious way, be as devastating as its sudden release in a hydrogen bomb.

It is possible that we could support a sustained population explosion for several hundred years and continue to multiply after there is "standing room only." We might be able to by-pass green plants by synthesizing carbohydrates and proteins. We could build cities on the deserts, on the mountains and in the seas, on all the lands that are presently fields and forests.

But along the way, the majority of animal species remaining now certainly vanish (and in this light it is ironic that the National Wildife Federation is among those pushing for "ultimate" energy). These species would no more be missed than the buffalo is missed in New York City.

The long-term solution to the "energy crisis," says Heinrich, is obviously population control rather than the development of more technology to provide m ore energy.

Cheap, inexhaustible energy — with it men would truly be as gods. But without godlike wisdom to accompany it, it could be like putting a stick of dynamite and a book of matches in the hands of a toddler.

NEED FOR JOBS
AMONG HOPES HINGING
ON AFTER-TAX SAVINGS

Since 1971 over 5 million jobs have opened up in the United States, bringing total employment to 86 million.

According to Tax Foundation, Inc., the civilian labor force growth of 1.3 million per year average during the 1960's has been topped in each of the past three years. Some 2 million persons, above the number who retire or drop out for other reasons, have been entering the job market each year.

The private sector of the economy has been providing about 85 per cent of the new jobs. It will presumably have to continue to provide the bulk of new jobs if increased productivity on a national scale is the answer to our present inflation, says Tax Foundation.

But the same inflation that plagues the shopper makes it much more expensive to equip the new worker to do a job. To create just one new industrial job today takes an average capital investment of some $27,000. The assets per worker run much higher in some industries — $127,000 in the oil refining industry; $84,000 in mining.

On that basis the new capital to provide even 2 million new jobs could run as high as $54 billion, the Foundation estimates.

The need for investment capital to create new jobs is, however, just one of a number of the already huge and growing demands for capital from the private sector of the nation's economy.

Most employees expect improvement in their present jobs — higher pay, shorter hours, earlier retirement, etc. The only way business can meet those expectations without raising prices is by achieving greater productivity. Where possible this will involve more capital investment in improved technological processes or better machinery.

In addition there are huge demands for more capital for energy requirements, for housing and for pollution control.

That kind of investment capital can not come from printing- press dollars or easy expansion of bank loans in an inflationary situation. The only source of such capital, says the Foundation, is the savings from the after tax incomes of business and individuals.

A number of warnings have been sounded that the present-rate of savings and capital formation in the United States will fall considerably short of meeting the nation's developing capital needs.

Some economists feel that our country is about to pay a high price for tax laws that unlike those of some other major countries, are too heavily weighted against saving. Tax Foundation's economic consultant, Prof. C. Lowell Harriss of Columbia University, was among those who suggested to Congress earlier this year, that for once the nation's capital needs should be considered before the enactment of tax changes that would create more obstacles to saving and capital formation.

THE POLICE AND COMPUTERS

Computers, like mass radio communications, are now a vital part of police work. Larger law enforcement offices around the country have found computers to be a powerful aid in the processing of criminal records, matching fingerprints and piecing together information that modern enforcement techniques require. A highly sophisticated computer process recently led to the solution of a series of robbery- murder cases in Dallas. The cracking of the cases not only served justice but also probably saved lives of merchants who could have been potential victims.

While science and technology move forward in the field of criminology. the basic ingredient of good law enforcement is still the human element. Officers doing lone night patrol provide security against the killer, burglar and hijacker. The mental computer of a seasoned detective comes up with the clues that solve stubborn criminal cases. Human courage of the man behind the badge is probably the most vital of all the resources thrown into the battle against crime.

There is still another element in the war against those who break the law. It is the support of the law enforcement agencies by the citizenry as a whole. If the latter fails, then all fails. That is why we constantly urge the involvement of citizens in law enforcement programs. This column believes that the Law-Aid program, an informal, unofficial effort to support the police, deserves consideration by all who want to help conquer crime. If there is not a group working on Law-Aid in your community, now is a good time to start one. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Seven Seas an Open Sewer

WASHINGTON — A highly confidential scientific study describes how oil wastes have poisoned sea life, jeopardized commercial fishing, tarred beaches and made an open sewer of the Seven Seas.

On each of the 100 numbered copies, the academy has stamped: "This is a working draft for internal use only, and it bears no official endorsement ... Not for Publication ... DO NOT QUOTE OR CITE."

But already, the academy has deleted a crucial section on the cancer threat from oil dumping. Scientists from Shell and Chevron oil companies will help prepare the final report. Therefore, we have decided to publish the findings before they are watered down.

The study shows that more than five million tons of oil wastes are dumped in the ocean each year by tankers, offshore industries, municipal oil users and oil- spilling motorboat engines.

The pro- oil scientists lobbied in the secret sessions, we have learned, to emphasize the natural seepage of urban auto wastes, which are washed into rivers and carried out to sea.

The strategy was to minimize Big Oil's sea fouling.

Although this section was weakened even before it got in draft form, it still shows 8,000 oil spills a year in U.S. waters alone, almost all of it in coastal waters.

These accidental spills, bilge flushings and other oil discharges are killing off birdlife, threatening entire species with extinction. Certain penguins, ducks and other report warns.

"These birds," it explains, "spend most of their lives on the surface of the sea ... They dive in response to disturbances, and if they dive on encountering floating oil, they become completely coated."

Because these gregarious birds flock together, "a small oil slick (can) cause very large casualties," declares the report. "One colony of guillemots (was) reduced by 250,000 in two years, and razorbills which were once numerous are now extinct as breeders."

A poignant passage in the report describes how mother birds coated with oil tried pathetically to hatch eggs but unwittingly covered the eggs with oil. This weakens or kills the baby birds as they are being hatched.

Birds that lay only a few eggs cannot make up for the losses caused by oil. On British coasts, according to the study, "90 per cent of stranded guillemots have been oiled." Their corpses are washed upon the beaches along a few miles of British coastline.

The oil companies have responded to the protests of environmentalists by touting "the Louisiana story." Offshore oil derricks, the companies allege, have actually increased sea life in the Gulf of Mexico.

The fishing catches, it's true, haven't diminished. But the report suggests this is because the fishermen often have shifted locations.

Meanwhile the 25,000 wells and other oil operations have dumped 1.1 million barrels of oil in the Gulf, tainting the oysters with oil odors and tastes. Oil company canaling and dredging have also let salt water pour into the coastal marshes which eventually destroy oyster and shrimp breeding.

"The time period that the Louisiana fisheries can withstand these alterations is Only the amazing ability of oysters and shrimp to reproduce under adverse conditions have kept fishing alive in Louisiana, the report suggests.

On the other side of the globe in the Caspian Sea, a combination of petroleum pollution and a drop in the water level have reduced the annual fishing catch from more than 600 million pounds to about 240 million.

The study details how oil slicks and spills poison sea life. The hydrocarbons "invade nerve tissue -- spinal cord especially." Mullet exposed to oil suddenly suffer strange fat deposits in their liver. Other fish simply smother or die of shock. No more than "two-cycle outboard motor affluent," the study found, caused fish to "begin gasping after 24 hours."

Lobsters in polluted waters produced tainted eggs which taste like paraffin. The oily waters could also spoil the lobster meat, causing "tainting of the white meat, of the tail and finally the claw meat became tainted but only in the most severe cases of poluution," sayd the report.

Another oil company myth demolished by the report is the cheery talk of cleaning up oil spills. The study shows that mechanical means, although usually safe enough, are often ineffective. But the ballyhooed "dispersants," which seem to make oil disappear, can cause even worse damage than the oil.

The dispersants may make it easy for marine animals to ingest the oil into their system. Dispersants may also pollute fresh water or even brackish water longer, with greater danger, than oil. When the Torrey Canyon gushed oil into the sea, it was the dispersants that did much of the damage.

Industrial Sabotage Conspiracy: Hundreds of Field Marshal Cinques Active in Nation, According to FBI

WASHINGTON — By any other name, there are hundreds off Field Marshal Cinques. There are scores of "liberation" sects, cells and armies. They now are a way of life not only in the big "Babylons" but in Southern communities unaccustomed to heavily armed "bands" or self-styled revolutionaries.

Some are infiltrated by the FBI and other internal security forces. Some are so small, so itinerant, so ad hoc that Federal agents can't seep into them. Some simply pick up Eldridge Cleaver's Black Liberation Army nom de (urban) guerre. Most are killers. None of this is fantasy. All of it, in one fashion or another, can be documented.

Their targets are varied.

There are dossiers to prove some of their objectives are industrial -- the big plants, power stations and fuel depots. Some have links to units in industrial sectors -- especially Detroit. Some still plan "political" kidnapings. For some of this, the authority is no less a specialist than FBI director Clarence Kelley.

Some are flamboyantly eager to put themselves on the record. This, for example, was evident at an unreported revolutionary conference in Atlanta, Ga., late in December. Here is an excerpt from an official description of the gathering:

"In December 1973, over 200 black extremists and revolutionaries met in Atlanta to form the African People's National Liberation Front for Independence in an effort to unify and coordinate their objectives and activities. The meeting was cohosted by the Republic of New Africa and the Africa People's Party, both black extremist and separatist groups."

Keynote speeches were stridently filled with cries for revolution, statements that the nation internally was "at war"; and that "independence for blacks will come through the application of destruction of capitalism and imperialism through the application of revolutionary theory and practice."

The emotional pitch was obvious. Each ersatz Field Marshal Cinque was attempting to carve for himself a piece of the action which might bring him a handful of supporters. Virtually none of the "revolutionists" had, or has, more than 20 or 30 followers. The following is small, but is big. But neither the support nor the funds spring from the broad- based balck communities across the U.S.

Toughest of all at the Atlanta revolutionary congress was -- and is -- Richard Henry, head of the Republic of New Africa.

The FBI wrapped him up in the following report:

"The key address by Richard Henry, head of the Republic of New Africa, advocated that blacks working aboveground must arm themselves lightly and legally while those underground should be heavily armed and should deal with such problems as 'police action.'"

Henry's outfit actually started in New York and Detroit years ago. One faction used to train for "the day" on a New York state farm. Then the action concentrated in Detroit. Finally it shifted to Mississippi.

What's quite significant here is the Detroit connection. The auto city has its own snake pit of real or imagined revolutionaries in auto plants. And some observers believe that this could be the route and pattern of infiltration of mass industries by neo-revolutionaries. In the "liberation" bands are men, articulate, knowledgeable and educated in local colleges.

They see the black trade-union membership as a possible target. This is of concern to labor leaders black and white alike. Few outsiders realize there are census and Department of Labor statistics showing the rate of black trade- union membership growth is slightly higher than that of whites.

It's estimated there now are some 450,000 black United Auto Workers members. And some 350,000 in the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO). And that black membership in such unions as the Transport Workers Union (AFL-CIO) is skyrocketing.

Thus the black revolutionaries could themselves infiltrate strategic installations, attempt recruitment or simply conspire to stir racial animosity as white bands have for decades right through the era of the SDS Weathermen. There is, of course, the ubiquitous Communist connection.

It took the FBI years to infiltrate the American Communist Party right on up to its highest command echelon. Today's problem is far more complex because this is a more sensitive field and fantastically fragmented.

But Cinque- ism did not die in the embers of that grim Los

Committee warns Nixon about continued refusal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today warned President Nixon he may be providing grounds for impeachment by refusing to honor committee subpoenas for Watergate tapes.

By a vote of 28 to 10, it authorized the sending of a letter to Nixon stating that his refusal will be weighed by the committee when it votes on whether to recommend his impeachment.

"In meeting their constitutional responsibility," the letter says, "committee members will be free to consider whether your refusals warrant the drawing of adverse inferences concerning the substance of the material and whether your refusals in and of themselves constitute a ground for impeachment."

An earlier draft had said members would be "obliged" to draw such an inference, but it was softened at the suggestion of Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md.

Eight Republicans joined with 20 Democrats in approving the letter, which was signed by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

The letter was a response to Nixon's letter of May 22 saying no further Watergate matter would be provided.

In his May 22 letter, Nixon based his refusal to supply 11 tapes subpoenaed by the committee on the grounds that it would lead to a never ending process of continuing requests.

Nixon said, "Such a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations" would fatally weaken the office of the presidency.

Nixon also told the committee it already had "the full story of Watergate insofar as it relates to presidential knowledge and presidential actions."

Approval of a response to Nixon's letter was only one of several matters to be settled by the committee today after the completion of the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence.

White House lawyer James D. St. Clair said the committee's impeachment case does not amount to much, but some committee members disagreed Wednesday.

"Very few prosecutors ever have this kind of evidence available," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a former federal prosecutor, after the committee wound up the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence Wednesday.

The committee will move next week into new areas in its inquiry, and will vote today on opening some of next week's hearings to the public. It also will decide on a response to Nixon's refusal to give it any more Watergate evidence.

Both Democrats and Republicans, in separate party caucuses earlier this week, decided to support a request by the panel's chief counsel for approval of a new subpoena at the meeting today.

St. Clair, who has been committed to attend the committee's closed sessions as an observer, said if the impeachment inquiry was an ordinary trial he would be tempted to rest his defense now.

"Nothing substantial has been presented," he told newsmen. He also said he thought the committee should call Watergate witnesses and clear up any remaining questions on the cover-up before proceeding to other subjects.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said at a news briefing that he hopes members will wait until the entire case, which involves dozens of allegations in several different areas, has been presented before expressing any judgments.

At the briefing, special counsel John M. Doar disclosed that proposed articles of impeachment were being prepared by the staff, but he warned against drawing conclusions about the activity. He said the work was being done so the material would be ready if the committee decides it is needed.

Most members regard Watergate as the heart of the impeachment inquiry and some did not hesitate Wednesday to say where they think matters stood.

Rangel said he was convinced on the basis of the White House-edited transcripts that Nixon committed impeachable offenses.

Reaction to the evidence presented so far generally followed party lines.

"I think a slight case has been made, but not substantial enough to support impeachment," said Rep. Henry Smith III, R-N.Y.

"They haven't shown me anything yet to make me think the President is guilty of anything," said Rep. Carlos Moorhead, R-Calif.

But Rep. William Hungate, D-Mo., said he thinks the case was "very substantial." And Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., said "very damaging items of evidence" were presented.

Mid-East stability chances improved by disengagement

The Syrian-Israeli military disengagement accord dramatically improves chances for Middle East stability. And so Syria's anxious ally, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, can begin breathing a little easier.

But his relief must be diluted by an acute awareness of how fragile such an agreement can be.

Bringing Syria under the disengagement tent with Israel and Egypt not only was a breakthrough of incalculable importance; it was another minor miracle of the sort that is becoming a specialty of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Having produced this wonder, however, Kissinger now must apply his legerdemain to the even more impossible-looking job of turning truce into peace.

Syria long has been the enfant terrible of the Arab world. Her political leaders are invariably under severe pressures generated by the highly emotional Palestine issue. When Kissinger set out to bring Syria into an agreement of any description with the arch-enemy, it seemed he had taken on a hopeless task.

Meantime, Egypt's President Sadat, eager to get his nation on the road to economic health, must have had many an uneasy moment. All alone in his military disengagement pact with Israel, he was out on a long limb and looking uncomfortable.

Had Syria continued to hold out for long, Sadat could have been subject to the same sort of difficulty that plagued him before the October war, when intellectuals demanded an end, one way or another, to the situation of "no war, no peace."

When Arab terrorists burst into the picture so bloodily at a critical moment in the Syria-Israel negotiations, it had seemed all Kissinger's patient labor would go down the drain.

Now the scene shifts to the Geneva conference, and if the Syria-Israel phase had looked tough, the Geneva one can be much tougher. Peace, in fact, is a long way off.

The terror situation still can threaten the fragile agreement, since there can hardly be a secure guarantee against acts by fanatical extremists.

For Israel, security is the name of the game. For Syria, it is "the legitimate rights of the Palestine people," a rhetorical demand that can mean many things, even up to dismantlement of the Israeli state. Some Israelis think the Syrians mean just that.

Syria will continue demanding back all the Golan Heights area it lost in 1967, but Israel will be far from eager to give up a security bird-in-hand for a promise in the bush.

Withdrawal from the Golan Heights could make Upper Galilee once again an easy target. Withdrawal from Mt. Hermon would deprive Israel of a clear view to Damascus, a warranty against surprise.

The Geneva phase will last a long time, but the outlook seems a lot more hopeful this month than it did last.

U.S. negotiating may prevent oil embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's help in negotiating the Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement virtually eliminates the possibility of another Arab oil embargo, a U.S. energy expert says.

"This agreement removes the major impediment to good relations between the United States and the Arabs," John Wilhelm, director of producer country affairs in the Federal Energy Office, said Wednesday.

Wilhelm's statement capped a day of good energy news for the country. The federal energy chief said electric utilities should have enough fuel to avoid power problems this summer, and it was reported that for the first time this year there are no gasoline shortages at the end of the month.

The diplomatic breakthrough in the Mideast, achieved after 32 days of mediation by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, came just three days before the Arabs were scheduled to meet and review their oil-export policy.

"I think with this impediment removed we can be reasonably assured that Arab oil production will increase, especially in Saudi Arabia," Wilhelm said.

He had made a recent visit to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya and reported Arab willingness to increase oil shipments, but said it hinged on U.S.-aided progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Wilhelm said he could not guess how fast or how far Arab oil production might be increased.

Meanwhile, federal energy chief John C. Sawhill said the nation's electric utilities should have enough fuel oil to meet power needs this summer, provided the public and utilities continue to conserve energy.

Sawhill announced that 89 utilities have been allocated 41.9 million barrels of residual fuel oil for June.

If the supply remains at or above current levels, there should be no power shortages due to lack of fuel oil with the possible exception of the East Coast, Sawhill said.

And the American Automobile Association said Memorial Day weekend travel and end-of-the-month gasoline allocation shortage failed to cause any deterioration in the nation's gasoline supplies this week.

It was the first time this year that the AAA has reported no deterioration in gasoline supplies at the end of a month.

New hours at hospital

CHAFFEE — A change in the visiting hours at Chaffee General Hospital has been announced by the hospital administration.

The new visiting hours are from 2 to 8 p.m. daily.

Morning visitors will not be permitted unless a patient is undergoing surgery that morning or is in critical condition.

3 arrested

Police today announced the arrest of John Leroy Chiles, 224 N. Handy St., rear, for assault and battery, two counts of peace disturbance and indecent exposure; Otis Applewhite Sr., 106 Westgate St., assault and battery; and Dennis Alan Overbey, 534 Carroll Ave., careless and imprudent driving.

Sirica won't turn over tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today refused to turn over tapes of four White House conversations sought by the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

Sirica said he was legally powerless to meet the request because the tapes of the four conversations, two on June 20, 1972, and the others from June 30 and Sept. 15 of the same year, were delivered to him for rulings on claims of executive privilege by President Nixon.

He said it is up to Nixon whether or not the tapes should be turned over to the committee.

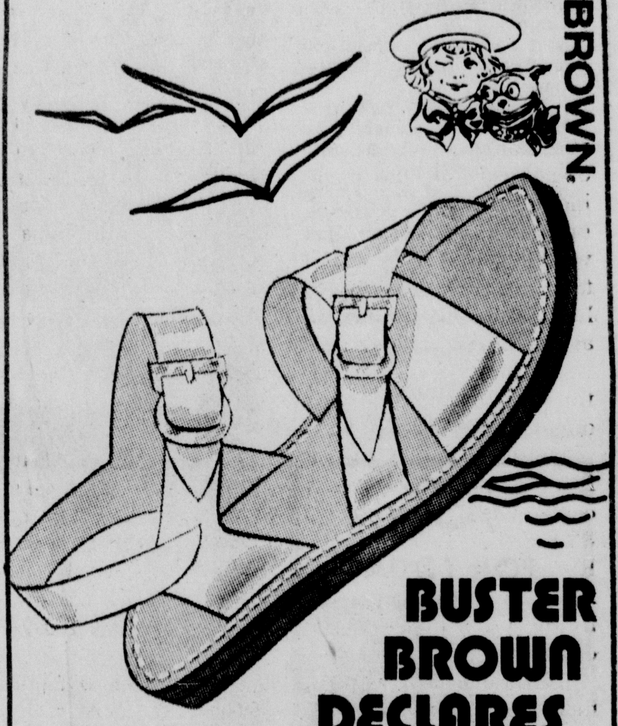

Citing this as a special case, Sirica said in a legal memo answering the Judiciary Committee, "The court does not in any way imply that the recordings sought are irrelevant to the impeachment investigation."

Sirica said his decision "is based rather on the wholly unrelated ground that the court simply has no role to play in the matter."

The judge said if the committee is turned down by the White House, then it must decide whether to pursue the tapes in the courts once again.

Dancers prepare for annual recital

Numbers will consist of tap, acrobatics, ballet, jazz and novelty dancing.

A dress rehearsal will be held Friday and pictures will be made of students.

Solists will perform

Soloists will also perform Saturday at the Patti Simmons School of Dance recital in Sikeston Activity Center. Here, Deanna Debo strikes a pose as she practices for the annual affair.

Mrs. Carroll given best program award

Mrs. Ella Louise Carroll was given a special award at the May meeting of Xi Epsilon Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority for presenting the best program to the club in 1973-74.

The program was "High Moments With Nature", during which she reminded the chapter that one does not have to leave his own yard to enjoy the beautiful things of nature.

Mrs. Carroll discussed a variety of flowers and shrubs.

Dancers to perform Saturday

Risco Bible school class entertained

The group was shown various procedures of making ceramics from slip, trimming greenware and firing it in a kiln. They were informed about porcelain procedures and china painting, and were shown an array of articles made by Mrs. Zarecor.

Meetings

MONDAY

Morley Community Betterment Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the community building to decide whether the club should continue or disband.

THURSDAY

Joy Pasaka School of Dance will present its annual recital at 7:30 p.m. in Sikeston Activity Center.

Ann Landers

Male reader expresses feelings on virginity, sex without love

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you asked teen- age boys to write and tell you how they felt about losing their virginity. I laughed when I read the letter because somehow one doesn't think of boys as "virgins." Then I stopped laughing and began to think seriously about my first sexual experience.

I was 16 and the girl was 15. I really didn't like her very much but I wanted to see if I could score because all the guys in my crowd were talking about the chicks they were knocking off and I was the only one who didn't have anything to my credit.

It was a crummy thing I did. I lied and told the girl I ahd been crazy about her for a long time -- a real snow job.

The whole "affair" lasted five minutes. I felt like a heel immediately after. When I took her home I didn't even kiss her goodnight.

I never called her for a date after that and I'm sure I hurt her feelings something terrible. I used that dumb kid for my own selfish purposes and to this day I regret it.

Sex without love is lousy. I hope every guy who reads this will remember what I am saying. It took me two years to get over that experience. The next time I had sex, it was with a girl I really cared about, and I married her. -- No Name Please

Dear No Name: Thanks for telling it like it was.

Dear Ann Landers: I am beginning to think I have bats in the belfry. Please tell me if you think I'm crazy.

When I was in my early 20s I enjoyed men my own age, and I married one. We had a good marriage for eight years, until Jim died in a tragic accident. It took me a solid year to get over it.

When I once again began to enjoy the company of men, they were in their 30s, and so was I. Now I'm in my 50s. I never remarried but I have several gentleman friends who are also in their 50s.

The point I want to make is this: Why do so many young girls run after men who are 20 and 30 years older than themselves; It's got to be money because these girls are not chasing older men of modest means. It's always some rich geezer. I call it prostitution no matter how you look at it.

Don't these girls realize that when the glamour wears off they'll be bored stiff and stuck playing nurse to some sick old buzzard; Why don't you tell them, Ann? -- Seen It Happen

Dear Happen: When they ask me, I tell 'em. But everyone knows of at least one exception to which they fiendishly point to prove you're all wet. (I know a few myself.)

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers recovered alcoholics and handicapped people make the best employes. As the personnel director for a large firm I can vouch for them -- both men and women.

The A.A.s and the handicapped are my most valuable employes. Their attendance record is by far the best and their job performance superior. It means a great deal to these people that someone had enough faith in them to give them a chance.

Please, Ann, urge your readers to hire recovered alcoholics and the handicapped -- Proof Positive

Dear Proof: Right you are! And I'd like to add a third group. Ex- convicts have proven to be excellent employes. Come on, folks, give these people a break. They really need it.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up to one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Students receive Junior American Citizen awards

NEW MADRID — The Lucy Jefferson Lewis Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution has announced that 22 students in the chapter's district received national Junior American Citizens awards for this year's annual JAC contest.

The contest was open for students from kindergarten through high school and included essays, posters, tapes, plays and various handmade historical artifacts.

The theme for this year's contest was "America's Future, My Responsibility", and the Missouri JAC chairman, Miss Dorothy Conway, presented all first place winners a $25 U.S. Savings Bond on behalf of the National JAC Committee.

The most outstanding entries received a bicentennial award, a stamp commemorating the Boston Tea Party. This commemorative stamp was presented to Cheryl Tanner for her entry under a "special project", which were original drawings depicting her ideas of America's future as seen in the church, school and community. Only one bicentennial award is given in this category. Miss Tanner also received a first place award of a $25 savings bond and also a Continental Congress certificate.

Other first place winners in New Madrid High School were Kenneth Lucy, Kevin Ivy, Ronnie Hooser, Lisa Copeland and Craig Hunter. Each of these students received a $25 bond and a Continental Congress award on his poster entry. Ruth Ann Canady received a third place award. Mary Catherine Sides, Loretta Beaher and Chris Tanner received honorable mention awards.

Winners in the New Madrid grade school were Charlotte Ramsey, who received a first place bond for her play. Mrs. Judy Hunt, director of the Abraham Lincoln JAC club, received an honorable mention; Linda Jane White received a second place award of $10 and a Continental Congress award for her essay entry; and Martin Lewis received an honorable mention award for his poster.

Winners in the New Madrid Junior High School were the "Free and the Brave" and "The Twentieth Century Pioneers" JAC clubs. Each of the clubs won an honorable mention for its scrapbook.

At Southwest Elementary School in Dexter, first place awards were presented to the Revere's Gallopers Club for a group program. The Thomas Jefferson, Junior Red, White and Blue and Daniel Boone JAC Clubs won first place for a special project and program.

The same four JAC Clubs also won first place prizes for scrapbooks. A second place award was also presented to the Revere's Gallopers Club for its scrapbook entry.

A total of $281 was received by the Lucy Jefferson Lewis Chapter to be awarded through the National JAC Contest.

GOOD OLD BOY
by Willie Morris
(Avon 18077/$.95
128pp.)

GOOD OLD BOY, Willie Morris' reminiscences of his childhood in Yazoo City, Mississippi, makes its paperback appearance as an Avon young adult title in January. The "good old boys" were Morris' childhood pals, Bubba, Muttonhead, Peewee, Henjie, and Spit and Morris recalls the adventures of their childhood days in a series of anecdotes.

Willie Morris, who was Editor- in- Chief of Harper's Magazine from 1967- 1971, is the author of a definitive non-fiction study of Southern mores: Yazoo: Integration in a Deep Southern Town, and of North Toward Home. His latest novel, The Last of the Southern Girls, published in hardcover in 1973, will head Avon's April 1974 list.

White House faces new court deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is facing new Watergate court deadlines, on the orders of a federal judge and by invitation of the Supreme Court.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell has ordered Nixon to state in writing by today that he understands charges in the plumbers case against former presidential assistants may be dismissed if subpoenaed notes and records are not provided.

And, Nixon was given until today to reply formally to a request by the Watergate special prosecutor that a lower appeals court be bypassed so the Supreme Court can decide whether he may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial.

If Nixon refuses to turn over the evidence sought by the defendants in the plumbers case, new ammunition would be provided to the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry.

Those defendants include former presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, who say they need files left in the White House.

Ehrlichman, Colson and three others are accused of violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding. Fielding's office was broken into in 1971 in an acknowledged search for information about Ellsberg, the former defense analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

At a pretrial hearing last Friday, Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair claimed executive privilege in attempting to dissuade the judge from his determined effort to obtain the notes of meetings sought by Colson and Ehrlichman.

Gesell brushed aside the claim.

He has said repeatedly that a final refusal by Nixon likely would result in dismissal of the charges because if the government withholds evidence beneficial to the defense then it may not prosecute its case.

In the second case, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski is asking the Supreme Court to leapfrog the U.S. Court of Appeals and decide if Nixon may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled to start Sept. 9.

St. Clair has indicated he will seek to have the matter argued first in the appeals court in Washington. Jaworski argues an early hearing is necessary because the normal judicial process would delay the coverup trial until next spring.

The justices normally meet Friday, when they may decide whether to give the case an early hearing.

In other developments:

—The Internal Revenue Service assessed Nixon with a 5 per cent negligence penalty in connection with more than $400,000 in back taxes, the Baltimore Sun reported. The penalty was included, but not publicized, in the IRS finding April 3 that Nixon owed $432,787 plus interest, the newspaper said. The IRS declined comment.

—Two lawyers of the Watergate prosecution team investigating the ITT case resigned. Their impending departure, following the resignation of their task force chief, will leave the team without a lawyer who has worked on the case fulltime.

Legislators will try to get campaign reform on ballot

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A group of legislators disenchanted with the prospect of their fellow lawmakers agreeing on a strong campaign reform package have decided to start a petition drive to get the issue on the November ballot.

"There's only five weeks until the deadline but we're going to try," says Rep. Steve Vossmeyer, D-St. Louis.

Vossmeyer and Rep. Jack Buechner, R-Kirkwood, planned to announce the start of the petition drive at 10 a.m. Thursday at the St. Louis Press Club.

They need at least 61,877 signatures by July 5 and must get signatures by 5 per cent of the legal voters in seven of the state's 10 congressional districts.

Vossmeyer said he hoped to get the support of the lobbying group, common cause, whose leader had talked about starting a petition drive to change the law after a campaign reform bill failed in the closing minutes of this year's legislative session.

Other legislators behind the petition drive, he said, are Reps. Harold Lowenstein, R-Kansas City, James Baker, D-Kansas City, James Conway, D-St. Louis, Sue Shear, D-Clayton, George Donegan, R-Springfield, and George K. Hoblitzelle, R-Ladue.

"Our bill has the structure of the final conference bill but it's much tougher," Vossmeyer said. "It doesn't look to me like we can get a strong bill in the legislature, and you can't put the total blame on the legislature."

Vossmeyer noted that the campaign reform issue was before the legislature this year, in 1973 and in the 61-day special session last winter.

"It indicates to me that not everybody who said they were for it really were for it," he said.

Vossmeyer called the present law a "farce."

He said the reporting requirements are stricter than the conference committee bill that died on April 30. The conferees had difficulty agreeing on whether the secretary of state should be on a commission to enforce the law.

The petition proposal excludes the secretary of state from a six-member bipartisan commission to be selected by the governor from 18 nominees submitted by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Records would have to be kept on all contributions of over $5 and all contributions of $25 or more would be filed with the secretary of state and made public. The total anonymous contributions would be limited to $500 for each election, primary and general.

Banks, trust companies and labor unions could not contribute at all, but voluntary organizations comprised of bankers or labor officials could. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education could contribute.

Any campaign committee must report any amount over $100 that it gives to another committee. The contributions and expenditure reports must be filed twice before the election and once afterward.

All candidates must file reports but those who spend less than $500 per election can file exemption statements and will have to file the complete list. Receipts must be kept on all cash contributions of $50 or more.

The varius committee treasurers must get the candidate's permission before they spend money on his behalf. Contributions by a candidate or his immediate family — parents, grandparents, child or grandchild or brother or sister—will be limited to $35,000 per election on statewide races and $25,000 on other races.

A person or organization can contribute up to $50,000 for one candidate for each election, or $100,000 during the campaign.

Under present law, a candidate can spend up to $600,000 on each election for statewide office.

The elections commission would have subpoena power. Violations would bring up to a $5,000 fine or one year in jail. Violation by a candidate would prevent him from running for re-election.

5,222 farmers apply for FHA disaster loans

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Some 5,222 Missouri farm families from 95 counties have made applications for low-interest disaster loans under an amendment introduced by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., last year.

As of April 30, 671 applications averaging $7,260 per loan have been approved, with the remainder awaiting final disposition. The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) estimates that about 95 per cent of all applications ultimately will be approved.

Eagleton's amendment required the FHA to make loans available to farmers who suffered storm damage between Dec. 26, 1972, and April 20, 1973 at an interest rate of one per cent with up to $5,000 of the principal forgiven. The amendment was enacted into law late in 1973.

"I introduced this provision when I learned the FHA was offering farmers five per cent loans," Eagleton said, "while homeowners and small businessmen were receiving loans at only one per cent."

This month the FHA announced two additional Missouri counties, Grundy and Linn, are also now eligible for the loans. An estimated 125 farm families in Grundy and between 75 and 100 families in Linn are expected to benefit from the action.

To be eligible, Eagleton said, a farmer must have suffered some production loss or some physical loss to his property as a result of floods or storms between Dec. 26, 1972, and April 20, 1973.

According to the FHA, heavy rains fell on Grundy County in the period of Jan. 1, 1973 to April 20, 1973, and a snowstorm hit the county on April 9, 1973. Linn County had excessive rainfall between September 1972 and April 19, 1973 and a snowstorm on April 9, 1973.

Eligible farmers should contact their FHA county supervisor before June 20, the cutoff date for applications. Qualified applicants are eligible for loans at one per cent interest with up to $5,000 of the principal canceled. Applicants will not have to show they are unable to obtain credit elsewhere, as was previously the requirement.

Commissioner of administration named

James, 34, has been directing the office but Bond, as acting commissioner of administration, had to sign warrants and other documents of the office.

James was appointed to the position in January, 1973 but Bond withdrew the nomination when the question of James' meeting the five-year state residency requirement was raised.

Noting that James returned to Missouri in 1969 after serving on the faculty of the University of Tulsa, Bond commented at a news conference:

"By June of this year, he will have been a bona fide resident of Missouri consistently for more than five years, and the technical objection to his appointment will have been removed."

At the time of the original appointment, another question of James' failure to hold a masters degree in public administration as required for the job also was mentioned.

But Bond reiterated today that the law also provides for experience to substitute for the degree requirement, contending that the nearly 10 years that James has served as a certified public accountant.

No inquest planned into SLA shootout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi says no inquest is planned, despite a request for one, into the deaths of six Symbionese Liberation Army members killed in a shootout with police.

Dr. L.S. Wolfe had asked for an inquest into the death of his son, William, and the five other SLA members who died in a more than hour-long gunbattle with Los Angeles police almost two weeks ago.

Wolfe, of Emmaus, Pa., arrived here Wednesday to press his demand and to seek help from the American Civil Liberties Union in forcing the issue. The local ACLU, which has criticized the shootout, said it was considering Wolfe's request.

The coroner's spokesman said, "We know of no reason to have an inquest. Nothing in our research has shown up anything irregular."

In an interview with television station KNXT here, Wolfe said Los Angeles police assured him before the raid on the SLA hideout that "the last thing we will do is go in with our guns blazing."

But Wolfe said: "They didn't know who they had killed, they didn't know who was in the house, they didn't know who they were trying to kill." Identities of the victims were not learned until the day after the gunbattle.

There was no immediate comment from police. They have said before that when they gave occupants in the house a chance to surrender, the response from the SLA was protracted gunfire.

Meanwhile, today's Chicago Tribune reported that authorities believe on the basis of a notebook found near the shootout site that newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was so fully trusted by her onetime SLA kidnapers that they permitted her to stand solitary guard against police raids through the night.

11 accident patients treated

Kenneth White, 44, Bertrand, bruised spine at work; Tonya Washington, 2, Sikeston, caught right arm in wringer washer; Bill Bollinger, 24, Benton, fractured right big toe and cut middle and big toes at work; and Danny Carmack, 19, Sikeston, burned right arm at work.

You can wrap turkey legs in foil and cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about two hours. The meat, cut from the bone and diced, will make good salads and sandwich fillings and may also be used in casseroles.

Graham will not forsake Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham says the transcripts of President Nixon's conversations about Watergate are "profoundly disturbing."

"One cannot but deplore the moral tone implied in these papers," Graham said Tuesday, ending a three-week silence about the released texts he had imposed until he had time to examine them himself.

A long-time personal friend and spiritual adviser to President Nixon, Graham said that "what comes through in these tapes is not the man I have known many years. Other mutual friends have made the same observation."

But the evangelist said Nixon remains "my friend, and I have no intention of forsaking him now. Nor will I judge him as a man in totality on the basis of these relatively few hours of conversation under such severe pressure.

"But I would be neither his friend nor God's servant if I did not point out the righteousness of God's demands at such a time as this."

Graham telephoned his statement from his Montreat, N.C., home.

Graham said he last had spoken with Nixon about three weeks ago by telephone while conducting a crusade in Phoenix, Ariz.

He said he since has spent several days reading the White House-released text, and had "thought about it and prayed about it" before issuing his statement.

"I just wish the whole thing had never happened," he said.

"We have lost our moral compass. We must get it back."

Although "we know that other presidents have used equally objectionable language—it does not make it right. 'Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain' is a commandment which has not been suspended, regardless of any need to release tensions."

Graham did not mention the Rev. John McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest on Nixon's White House staff who has defended the President's use of profanity as an outgrowth of a need to release tensions. But he used virtually the same words, and in doing so disputed McLaughlin.

Chaffee policeman dismissed for failure to obey

CHAFFEE — City policeman Brady Bailey was dismissed during a special meeting of the City Council last Thursday night at the request of Police Chief Jim Coats, who said Bailey had failed to follow instructions in a memorandum issued to the police force.

The dismissal was based on an incident in which a police car was damaged while chasing a pickup truck driven by Mark Newton of Perkins into the Delta area. Several shots reportedly were fired at the truck which attained speeds of 90 miles per hour in an effort to elude the police car. The police car had chased the truck into a farmer's lane when the damage to the car was sustained.

Chief Coats told the council that Bailey said the chief, mayor and council were stupid for issuing a directive stating that city police cars could not go over two miles past the city limits in a pursuit and he was not going to abide by it.

According to Coats, Bailey also stated that if the council fired him he was going to bring a law suit against the council members.

The council issued a warning to other policemen that suspension or dismissal would be the result of any other violation of police rules and regulations in the future.

Council members stated complaints have been received that the policemen are not patrolling the downtown area at night and are not checking the doors and rear entrances of businesses.

Other compaints received by the council have been that the police are using their sirens unnecessarily and driving at high rates of speed through the city during the night and that police cars are parked on the wrong side of the street for extended periods.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 30, the 150th day of 1974. There are 215 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1883, a report that New York's new Brooklyn Bridge was about to collapse created panic. Six persons on the bridge were trampled to death.

In 1942, during World War II, more than 1,100 British bombers pounded Cologne, Germany.

In 1961, the dictator of the Dominican Republic, Rafael Trujillo, was assassinated.

In 1963, the official death toll in a windstorm which struck East Pakistan was put at 10,000.

Ten years ago: U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in Saigon, said the United States was determined to force Communist China and North Vietnam to leave their neighbors in Southeast Asia alone.

Five years ago: A general strike practically paralyzed Argentina as workers laid down their tools to protest police action against students.

Today's birthdays: Band leader Benny Goodman is 65. Actress and writer Cornelia Otis Skinner is 73.

Thought for today: What we see depends mainly on what we look for. John Lubbock, English astronomer and mathematician's 1803-1865.

Bonds reduced for trio charged with possession

BENTON — Bonds were reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 for three Arkansas residents arraigned Wednesday in Magistrate Court before Judge Lloyd Briggs for possession of eight pounds of marijuana.

The men charged are Martin Dudley Allen, 20, of Walnut Ridge, Ark., and Gary Dills, 22 and Danny Campbell, 24, of Hoxie, Ark.

The trio was arrested Sunday at Cape Girardeau Municipal Airport in extreme northern Scott County, after Sheriff John Dennis received a tip from an unidenfitied person that the men would land at the airport with approximately eight pounds of marijuana.

The men were apprehended when they attemped to get back on the plane.

An attorney was appointed to defend Betty Jean Huffman, also known as Betty Oliver, on a May 18 charge of writing a $50.77 bad check to Barkett's Big Star Market.

John Drury of Cape Girardeau was ordered to surrender his driver's license for 30 days after he pleaded guilty to an improper parking charge. He was also fined $61.50.

Trial was set on June 5 for Oscar Johnson of Norwood after he pleaded not guilty to a careless and imprudent driving charge.

World news in brief

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — President Nixon was assessed a 5 per cent negligence penalty by the Internal Revenue Service in connection with 467,000 he owes in back income taxes and interest, a newspaper said. The Baltimore Sun, quoting sources familiar with the case, said the IRS included the penalty on April 3 when it assessed Nixon $432,787 in back taxes, plus interest. The Sun said the dollar amount of the alleged negligence penalty could not be determined. Nixon has said he would pay the taxes, but the White House has refused to say whether a negligence penalty was involved. The IRS refused comment. A negligence penalty does not amount to a finding of fraud.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Despite effective vaccines, epidemics of childhood diseases still could erupt nationwide partly because of the complacency of parents in having their children immunized, a health official warns. "The ho-hum attitude of parents that immunization can be put off until a child enrolls in school is part of the reason for the problem," Dr. John J. Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the Center for Disease Control, said. A recent massive immunization program by the center has shown some results, Witte said. Polio vaccinations, for example, are up at least 20 per cent over a comparable period in 1973.

DETROIT (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency will fight "tooth and nail" to prevent its responsibility for rating auto fuel economy from being turned over to auto makers, an EPA official says. Eric O. Stork, who heads the EPA's emissions and fuel economy testing programs, said the agency would resist increasing pressures from auto makers and the White House to relinquish its economy tests. The White House's Office of Management and Budget has recommended the EPA continue the testing through the 1975 model year, with the Commerce Department's Bureau of Standards taking over in 1976. The bureau eventually would yield responsibility to the auto makers themselves, who would conduct the tests under government supervision.

A MATTER OF TASTE

NEW YORK (AP) — Baby may not arrive with a silver spoon in his mouth but chances are he's equipped with his very own sweet tooth. While it may not show, it definitely is there, researchers at Monell Chemical Senses Center at the University of Pennsylvania proved recently.

They offered 2-day-old babies a variety of waters — plain, sweet, salty and even sour. The majority preferred the sugar water and drank more of it. Water is vital to us from infancy to old age. It performs two vital functions for us: it acts as a solvent to transport nutrient materials to cells and helps remove waste products.

In a case reported in 1888, a 15-year-old female patient yawned continuously for a period of five weeks.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The public sale of Baltimore Colts' season tickets, an unheard of phenomenon since team's formative years, will begin at 9 a.m. Monday.

Hart displeased

Jim Hart, the most successful quarterback the St. Louis Football Cardinals have had since Charley Johnson left the scene, payed a visit to Sikeston Saturday afternoon as a guest of the J. C. Penney store and was busy signing autographed pictures for his many fans in the community.

Jim had his son sitting beside him during his stay at the store to keep him company.

He told one fan that he guaranteed that the Cardinals would win more games this season than last.

Jim seemed to be very displeased with the new rules which have been put into effect by the owners of the football teams for next season. "The rules will not effect my play any," said Hart. "I had just as soon see the same rules for the receivers that have always been," he said referring to the new bump and run rule.

"The new rules were made to benefit the fans, to make the game more exciting," he said.

Jim doesn't like the overtime period at all. "It will only produce more injuries." "Fatigue sets in in the fourth quarter."

"The owners set up the rules without consulting the players," he said. "They keep saying it's abusiness. If it's a business let's treat it like a business," Hart went on.

Homer beats Gibby

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Cey, the Los Angeles Dodgers' stubby "Super Penguin," smiled ruefully in considering the pitching of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 5-foot-10 third baseman, who hit .167 against it in 1973, atoned for part of the frustration Wednesday night with a three-run homer ushering his team to a 5-2 National League win.

"I didn't even know about all the troubles I'd had with them until I read about it this winter," said Cey, who keyed an 11-hit Dodger attack.

"But that really doesn't mean much," he mused. "We play only 12 games a year against the. It's what you do over the course of a whole season that counts."

Cey's homer, his fourth, made a winner of left-hander Tommy John, 8-1, who pitched 6 1-3 innings, and a loser of the Cards' struggling Bob Gibson, 3-5, who was protecting a 2-1 lead.

"I don't think Id have gotten that pitch if it'd been at any other time of the ball game," he reflected of Gibson's sixth inning fast ball.

"It was up and in," he noted. "I think he was just trying to get out in front in that situation."

Ahead of the blast the 38-year-old Gibson had had the better of the 6-foot-3 John on the basis of Reggie Smith's run-scoring double and Mike Tyson's run-producing single.

But hot-hitting Steve Garvey nicked him for a two-out hit in the decisive rally and Joe Ferguson followed with the Dodgers' seventh hit.

Cey strode to the plate and had barely squared off in the batter's box before hopping on a delivery he drove 385 feet over the inner fence in left-center field.

Sharing offensive honors with the 26-year-old Cey was shortstop Bill Russell, who pounded out three singles and a double leading off.

"It's a new role for me," observed Russell, who usually hits eighth.

Marshall set down Smith on strikes and Ted Simmons on a grounder to quell the upriising, then worked past a 70-minute rain delay and two singles in the eighth.

"Marshall's been great," John acknowledged. "I know if I was the manager I'd consider my job easy. All he has to do is get six or seven innings out of his starters, and Mike finishes up."

TORONTO (AP) — National Hockey League player Doug Favell announced Tuesday he will play his first game Friday night with the Philadelphia Wings of the National Lacrosse League.

Favell, who plays forward in lacrosse but goaltender for the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, has been working out with the Wings. He said he was given permission by Leafs general manager Jim Gregory to participate in the off-season activity.

BATTING—George Scott, Brewers, belted a three-run homer in the ninth inning to carry Milwaukee to 7-5 victory over the California Angels.

PITCHING—Jackie Brown, Rangers, fired a three-hitter to lead Texas to a 3-0 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

SEES ACE ON FILM

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — When Gene Sarazen made his hole-in-one in the 1973 British Open the five iron shot was shown on television. But Sarazen received a bigger surprise at the eighth annual Tony Lema memorial dinner here when the shot was shown on film.

Sarazen, the chairman of the Lema one-day tournament, said the British Open ace was the seventh of his long career. He also said a bigger thrill came in the 1935 Masters when he registered a double eagle. Sarazen says he can still hit the golf ball for distance except that where he once needed a four iron he now needs a four wood.

Jack Nicklaus has won the Masters golf tournament four times.

Pitching stands out

Leible Implement and Elks won Senior Babe Ruth games at VFW stadium Tuesday night. Leible won behind Mitchell Walker's second win of the season beating Optimist 10-1 and Elks downed Security National Bank 4-3 as Self outpitched Hewitt.

Walker gave up only two hits to Optimist as Leible teammates backed his hurling with a nine hit attack.

Leible wasted little time in jumping on Paxton, the losing pitcher as they scored two runs in the top of the first and four more in the top of the second to wrap up their second win of the season against no losses.

Elks and Security National Bank had a close battle all the way as Elks jumped on top with three runs in the top of the first inning. Security scored two in the third. After Elks went ahead 4-2 in the top of the fifth Security scored their final run in the sixth inning.

Nowell, Harts pitching tough

Nowell and Harts recorded rather easy wins in Jr. Babe Ruth league action Wednesday night. Nowell rode the two hit pitching of Montgomery to a 9-2 victory over Elliott- Newton while Harts got a one-hit pitching performance from Davidson for a 16-4 win over IBEW.

Harts pounded out 11 hits, including a double by Myrick and triples by Hampton and Ken Standridge.

Nowell used an eight hit attack to defeat IBEW.

Meramec No. 1

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Sophomore pitcher John Whitaker held Miami Dade North of Florida to three hits as undefeated Meramec of St. Louis, Mo., defeated the Floridians 6-4 Wednesday night to win the National Junior College Baseball Tournament.

It was the first championship for Meramec in four trips to the annual tourney.

Meramec jumped off to a three-run lead in the third inning on an error and two singles, one of them by shortstop Steve Viefhaus who was voted the tournament's most valuable player. Viefhaus, who scored one run and had one RBI in Wednesday's game, set a new tournament record with four home runs in five games.

Miami came back in the bottom of the third, scoring two runs on a homer by Carl Gardner. They took over the lead with two more runs in the fourth, one on an error and the other on a single.

In the fifth inning, Meramec scored two runs on a double by Mike Murphy and a single by Tony Barylski. Viefhaus scored the final run of the game in the ninth on a single by John Franz.

The win left Whitaker with a 12-0 season record.

The losing pitcher, Paul Porowski, went eight and a third innings, giving up all six Meramec runs on 11 hits.

Matson wins shot

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, track fans, there will be another pro tour in 1975, and it will be run with Ben Jipcho but not John Carlos.

Jipcho, perhaps the world's leading distance runner, was enthusiastic in his praise of pro track after he climaxed the 1974 International Track Association season Wednesday night with a scintillating 3:56.6 clocking in the mile.

Carlos, on the other hand, was highly critical of the ITA after winning the 300-yard dash and finishing second in the 60.

"I am very thankful to the ITA for having brought pro track to the whole world," said Jipcho after running the fourth fastest indoor mile in history and the first sub-four minute performance on the pro tour this year. "I was thinking of leaving running until they came up with the money."

The slender but durable prison guard from Kenya was the leading money winner in his first year as a pro with earnings of $16,700. He won 18 of 18 of 20 races over one and two miles.

"This is my last race as a pro," snapped the angry Carlos after his triumph in the 300, the second of his two races. "The only people making money out of this are those in the ITA. I'm sick and tired of running for promoters. That's why I'm going to play football."

Earlier Wednesday, the New York Stars of the World Football League had announced the signing of the 6-foot-3, 195-pounder. Carlos flunked a previous tryout as a pro football player with the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles in 1970.

However, in 1971 and 1972, he was a wide receiver with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Meanwhile, Michael O'Hara, ITA president, assured followers of the pro sport there would be a third season.

A record ITA indoor crowd of 15.621 nearly filled Madison Square Garden and increased attendance for the year to 172,752 for 14 meets, an average of 12,332. Those figures, however, were swelled by crowds of 38,000 and 19,000 for two outdoor meets in Japan.

The ITA may split the season into indoor and outdoor campaigns next year,similar to the amateurs, and may run a total of 30 meets.

Meanwhile, Wyomia Tyua, two-time Olympic Chamdion, tied the women's world record for the 60-yard dash with a clocking of 6.5 seconds, a time she had matched twice previously.

Other winners included: J.J. Jackson in the 60-yard ash, with a time of 5.9 seconds; Olympic champion Rod Milburn in the 60-yard hurdles 6.9 seconds; George Young in the twomile in 8:49.0; Chris Fisher in the 880, 1:53.5; Lee Evans in the 440, 48.21; Randy Matson in the shot put, 70 feet, 1 inch Ed Caruthers in the high jump, 7-0, and Henry Hines in the long jump, 26-1¼.

Sikes explains new department functions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared in the Tuesday edition of the St. Louis Post- Dispatch. Alfred C. Sikes is formerly of Sikeston and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kendall Sikes of 507 N. Kingshighway, Sikeston.)

By FRED W. LINDECK
Missouri Political
Correspondent of the
Post- Dispatch

JEFFERSON CITY — Alfred C. Sikes says it is not true that he now answers to the name of CARL.

Sikes is the director of the Department of Community Affairs, who, on July 1, will officially become the director of the new Department of Consumer Affairs, Registration and Licensing. In the nature of government, the new department automatically became known as CARL.

But Sikes admits that whereas he used to spend a lot of time trying to explain what the Department of Community Affairs does, he now will also spend time trying to explain what CARL does.

Among the 14 new departments created in state reorganization, CARL is the conglomerate. No other department has had more separate functions assigned to it.

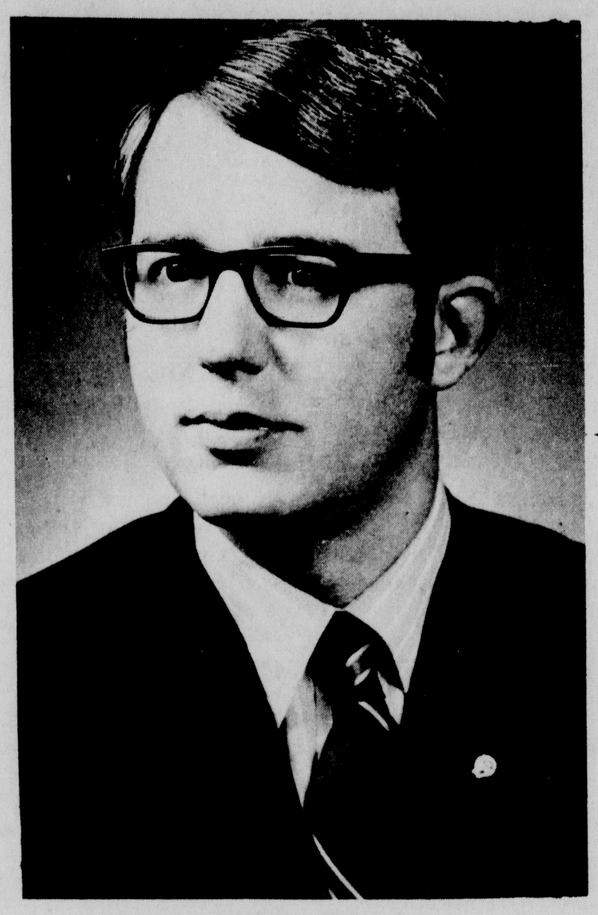

To try to simplify things, Sikes breaks the collection down into three categories: agencies that promote the state's economy, agencies that regulare business and protect the consumer, and agencies that license crafts and professions.

One of the objectives of reorganization was to reduce the number of functions that the governor had to supervise himself. Sikes, the man Gov. Christopher S. Bond chose to oversee all these operations, is one of Bond's most trusted political aids.

Sikes, 34, started as a campaigner for Attorney General John C. Danforth when Danforth was first elected in 1968. He became an assistant attorney general, and then was Danforth's campaign manager in his unsuccessful try for the United States Senate in 1970.

Then in 1972, Sikes managed Bond's victorious campaign, which ended almost three decades of Democratic domination of the state administration.

Based on this kind of confidence and close association, Bond is leaving in the hands of Sikes a knot of agencies that at any time can become the source of troublesome or embarrassing disputes.

Alfred C. Sikes

Under Sikes will be the Public Service Commission, which rules on rates and numerous other subjects involving consumers and utilities. There is also the Finance Division, which decides on awarding of bank charters.

Sikes will also have the Insurance Division, the Human Rights Commission, and 14 licensing boards that from time to time produce controversies such as that over the denial of a medical license to Dr. R. Bernard Finch, parollee from a murder conviction who came to Missouri from California.

In some cases, the agencies assigned to Sikes's department have independent powers. Many of them are boards or commissions that retain the power to determine their own policies.

But, in most instances, Sikes will have the authority to set the budgets for these agencies and in controlling the amount of money and staff they have to work with. Sikes acknowledges that he can affect how their polices are carried out.

The Public Service Commission has the independent authority— to disagree with Sikes's budget decisions and take its case directly to the Legislature. But, in a majority of cases, Sikes has the power to fire an agency head should he dispute his allocation once it has been negotiated within the overall department budget request.

Sikes foresees potential problems. If someone ever comes to him protesting that the Division of Finance did not give him a bank charter, Sikes says he will listen tactifully, but his reply will be that the proper recourse is through the State Banking Board and the courts.

He said he would not try to infringe on the PSC's rate-making authority.

"But if a big controversy breaks out in insurance, I don't see any way I can avoid being drawn in. The fire truck is always there," Sikes said.

Ideally, action and policy should be determined by the agencies under his departmental roof, Sikes said. "But as a practical matter, the buck is going to stop at my desk," he adds. His function will be to rule on those disputes, and try to keep as many as possible from being thrown on Bond's shoulders.

Sikes's salary will go up to $30,000, from the $21,500 he gets as head of the Department of Community Affairs. He said his principal personal interest in the new department will be in economic development because that is the area he has worked in at Community Affairs.

Community Affairs was always a nebulous type of department that few persons fully understood. It does the state and regional planning that the federal government demands before awarding grants, it helps local governments find federal aid money and it contains the Office of Aging and economic opportunity programs.

Some of these functions ended up in Sikes' new department, together with separate economic development agencies such as the Tourism Commission and the Division of Commerce and Industiral Development.

Sikes said he felt vulnerable about serving the first six months as department director because it will that long before the Legislature reconvenes and the Democratic- controlled Senate will consider his confirmation.

This would force him to get the new department started knowing that some act or decision could raise opposition in the Senate, Sikes said.

Moreover, he acknowledged the possibility that his appointment could be regarded as a reward by Bond for political services. But Sikes said he had tried to avert that suspicion by keeping politics out of his decisions whenever he was not functioning as a campaign manager.

Some people are motivated by getting people elected, or running for office themselves, and others are motivated by serving in the day - to - day operation of government," he said.

Sikes said his preferences have always been stronger in the latter field. He concluded he might run for public office some day, but said he was deterred by the sacrifice to his private life which this would entail.

The longest animal ever recorded is the giant jellyfish (Cyanea arctica), which is found in the northwest Atlantic Ocean. One specimen washed up on the coast of Massachusetts, c. 1865, had a bell 7½ feet in diameter and tentacles measuring 120 feet.

Senate wants commodity distribution to continue

Last week the Senate passed legislation I cosponsored which would continue the authority of the Department of Agriculture to purchase food and donate it to schools, day-care centers, charitable institutions, and supplemental food programs.

This legislation was needed immediately since the Administration intended to cancel donations of food to institutions by June 30, 1974. They would have ended donations to schools by June 30, 1975.

This cancellation was planned despite the severe blow it would be to the ability of school districts in Missouri to provide low- cost nutritious lunches to school children.

Witnesses from Missouri have testified before committees of the Senate that it would be impossible for local school districts to buy the quantity and quality of food that the Department of Agriculture can buy with an equivalent amount of money.

Costs to local school districts would inevitably be higher because they would buy in smaller quantities and would lack the capability that USDA has to make mass purchases when prices are at their lowest.

Elderly and Child Care Programs

But an even more immediate problem rests with institutions for the elderly and child care programs in Missouri. Some 208 public or nonprofit institutions in Missouri, serving over 19,000 needy persons, have been receiving donated commodities. Of these, 76 serve primarily children and 92 serve primarily the elderly. In fiscal 1973, these programs received commodities with a wholesale value of about $230,000.

The abrupt termination of donated foods this summer, as planned by the Department of Agriculture, would seriously handicap these institutions and child care programs in Missouri.

As Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Aging, I am especially concerned that nutrition programs for the elderly, recently inaugurated across the country under Title VII of the Older American Act would, under the Administration's plans, become ineligible for commodities after June of this year.

Commodity Distribution To be Permanent And Mandatory

The legislation passed by the Senate would make permanent and mandatory the authority to purchase non- surplus commodities where that is necessary to continue traditional levels of commodity donations to food assistance programs, including school lunch and other child nutrition programs, charitable institutions, supplemental food programs and disaster relief.

To keep up with inflation, the legislation would increase the value of commodities donated to schools from the current 7 cents per meal to 10 cents per meal and would require this figure to be adjusted annually in keeping with changes in the cost of food.

The legislation would also make permanent the authority of the states to serve reduced price lunches to children from families with incomes up to 75 per cent above the income poverty guidelines.

Accounts committee to cut employe payroll

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate Accounts Committee has decided to drop 37 employes from the Senate payroll until the next legislative session next January.

However, the employes are expected to be returned to the payroll for the Sept. 4 veto session.

The cuts were necessitated in part by Gov. Christopher S. Bond's veto of $473,112, from the $1,235,322 contingency (operations) fund.

Twenty of the employes are secretaries earning from $500 to $600 a month and who for the most part are second secretaries working in the senator's home district. The other employes include clerks, doorkeepers and the Senate chaplain.

Special school district vital to Pemiscot County

BRAGGADOCIO — The history of the Pemiscot County Special School District is a recent history. The need for its conception and further organization is very important to the county. The special district's goal is to help each student reach his maximum potential by providing programs that will be designed to meet his individual needs.

The Special Education Department of the Pemiscot County Special School District will make every effort to initiate new programs to meet the current needs of children, according to Supt. W. T. Robison, who said it will be the intention of the special district to assign students to the educational program that will best facilitate their needs.

The special district will continue with the work of the local schools to provide programs for those students who need all day special services. This is the program for educationally handicapped students who are already receiving special help.

The elementary students in this category will remain in their home district schools but will have a Pemiscot County Special District teacher. The secondary students in this area will be served at a separate school operated by the Special District.

The secondary school will be a departmentalized setting, including vocational education, home economics, industrial education, an athletic program and driver's education. The students will also have a regularly geared academic program designed for their individual needs.

The special district will also continue the ongoing speech services of the county schools. There will be a public school program in speech correction and a speech and language communications program for children in the special school district buildings.

No major changes will occur in the speech program. Students who need only speech services will continue to receive them at their home schools with a speech therapist employed by the Pemiscot County Special School district.

The special district will provide a program for children with learning disabilities. This will be a highly structured educational curriculum for children who have normal and above intelligence, but evidence specific learning disabilities.

Special education services for children with emotional and social maladjustment problems will be part of the Pemiscot County Special District. This program will be for children who may have average or above average intelligence, but will require teachers trained to work with the students' emotional problems.

The objective of this program is to assist the child to develop new patterns of emotional learning and to help the child in maintaining an acceptable level of academic and social functioning in the school at large.

The special district will employ a qualified teacher to work in the area of deaf education. This is a category that has been needed for some time in our county. Children who are deaf or have a significant hearing loss will receive additional needed services by the special district. Programs for deaf education will be designed and programmed for each child in that area.

Another new program that will be started by the special district is one for visually handicapped children. These students will be assisted by special district teachers who will be trained in working with visually handicapped children. The special district's assistance will range from tutorial help through provision of braille and large print textbooks and other materials.

Special programs for physically and orthopedically handicapped children also will be initiated by the special district. These are regular educational programs for children with physical disabilities which prohibit them from attending regular classes. Children will in all possible cases, be grouped according to age and academic achievement to give all an equal opportunity.

The special district will furnish teachers for homebound instruction. This will include students with illness or injury who will be homebound for one month or more.

The students at the state school at Hayward will come under the jurisdiction of the special district next year. This will continue to be an all day program. It is the overall goal of this program to continue to make every possible effort to help these children reach their maximum potential.

The teaching personnel of the Pemiscot County Special School District will consist of qualified teachers in the various disciplines of special education. All members of the staff will be highly interested in, and concerned for, the needs of the students enrolled in the special district.

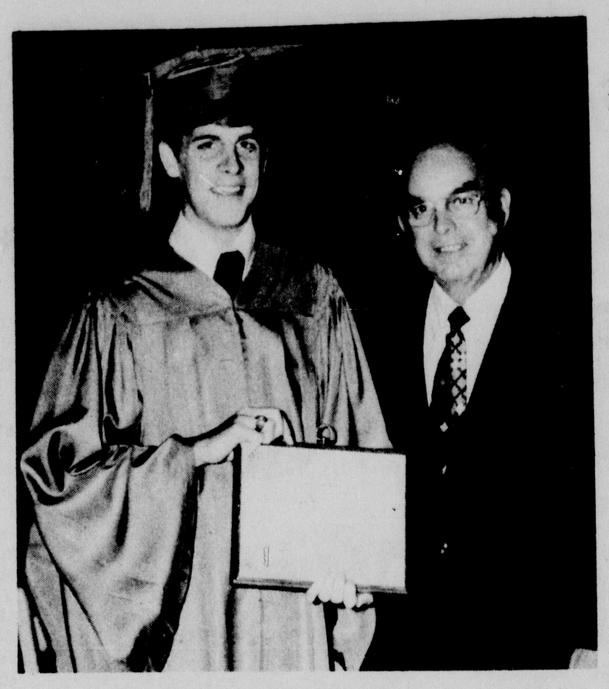

The main objective of education is to design and maintain programs that will meet and direct the student's individual abilities.

The basic idea that all children are not alike and that many different methods are needed to educate children has prompted educators and interested people in providing special programs to serve these very special students in our society.

The Pemiscot County Special School District plans to continue the past success of ongoing special education programs and hopes to expand these services to meet the needs of other exceptional children in the county.

Scholarship awarded

Madrid valedictorian receives scholarship

NEW MADRID — Horrell H. Townsend III, valedictorian of the 1974 New Madrid High School graduating class was presented the Bank of New Madrid $500 scholarship award by president Sam L. Hunter Jr. at commencement exercises Friday.

The award is made annually to one senior chosen from five nominees representing each high school in New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District.

Each school counselor-recommended a nominee and their credentials were sent by Supt. Ray Melton to a selection committee at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau which made the final selection.

This year's nominees, in addition to Townsend, were Barbara Byerly of Matthews High School, Shirley Ann Drake of Lilbourn High School, Donna Klipfel of Portageville High School and Reatha Lewis of Parma High School.

Townsend completed high school with the school's highest possible grade- point average of 4.0 and is the first New Madrid High School student to receive the award since the scholarship was established in 1971.

In commending Townsend for his scholastic honors and school, church and community activities, Hunter stated "his achievements indicate that he is not only an excellent student, but a fine young citizen as well, who is an asset to his community."

Townsend plans to continue his education in the field of medicine. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Townsend Jr.

Nudist colony members may take up farming

HONOLULU (AP) — Obeying a judge's words to the letter, a group of local people plan to start farming in the nude.

The judge was only concerned about agriculture, but since the prospective tillers of the soil are members of the Hawaii Nudist Club, bib overalls are out of the question.

"It shouldn't be necessary, but if they want us to go farming, we can go farming,' George Muller said Wednesday.

Muller leases 247 acres of rural beachfront property, granting equal access to ducks, chickens and the 500 members of the club.

Trustees of the James Campbell estate, which owns the land, last week won a temporary injunction forbidding any nonagricultural use of the land.

Circuit Court Judge Norito Kawakami carefully limited his order to agricultural issues but added, "If they are there for nude farming, okay."

The case was continued to June 28.

Club President Larry Beck announced the formation of an agricultural cooperative to grow watermelons, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes on 30 or 40 acres. Any profits were promised to nearby Kahuku Hospital.

Muller, himself a nudist, said he plans to retire from his job at a pineapple cannery next year and devote full time to farming.

The club moved onto the property more than two years ago, but Muller said trouble started after the club drew the attention of local news media.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I want to thank publicity one of the most courteous and most thoughtfull people I've ever met. Some one who will, can and has gone out of his way to help others that need his help. Even to the point of beyond his duty.

On a Thursday night a week or so ago our car broke down on I-55 approx. 12 miles south of Sikeston, as we were returning from Memphis, with our son who had undergone tests that proved he had a menigist infection. Tho n' contagious, he was sick. And in our need and desperation and over 30 miles from home, our Prince in Shining Armor, turned out to be Patrolman Gary Christman. He brought us all the way home, also called a wrecker for our car!

Wouldn't it be nice to Salute Gary and all others like him. For it is men like him that make our country a little more safe and pleasant.

MY BROTHER AND I

By: Gayle Roslen

When we were younger,
My brother and I.
For each other,
We would lie.

We were friends,
Best friends, that is.
Then one day I had my friends,
And he had his.

Now we fight all the time,
And unlike before, we never make deals.
We always say how much each other we hate,
And if we're not careful it may be too late,
To tell each other how we really feel.

I want him to know,
That I love him so.
And if God should ever take him away from me,
How very lonesome I would be.

I'm proud of him.
And all his fame,
Comes back to me,
When I say his name.

I want us to be friends,
My brother and I.
Without him and his love,
I think I would die.

"IN FLANDERS FIELD"
(a poem adapted to fit The Vietnam conflict and titled)--
"IN PRIVILEGED FIELD"

In Privileged Field the privileged grow
Between their mansions row on row
That mark their place — And in the sky
the Jet Set still bravely singing fly
Scarce heard amid their cadillacs below.
The privileged are alive long days from now
Because of us they will live, feel dawn, see sunset glow,
Love and be loved because they live
In privileged field.

They will not take up our quarrel with the foe
Outside of privileged field more of us still grow.
To them from our failing hands they take the torch
To hold it high, but they were safe in their classrooms
And only took the torch after we had died.
Though they broke faith with us who died
They shall lose no sleep
In Privileged Field.

Lightning leaves 5 dead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lightning accompanying heavy thunderstorms has left five St. Louisarea people dead, four of them high school girls.

Police in suburban Manchester said the four teen-agers were apparently walking toward the John F. Kennedy High School Wednesday when lightning struck a large elm tree next to them.

The girls died "from a classical case of lightning strike— electrocution," said Dr. Roland Lowden of the St. Louis County Medical Examiner's office.

The victims were Diane Marie Jaas, 14, of Glendale, and Annette Marie Ruder, 15; Katherine Ohlsen, 15, and Margaret Zoellner, 16, all of Kirkwood.

"Its the first time in my 20 years on this job that I've seen four people killed at once by lightning," said Raymond Harris, county medical examiner.

The girls' slightly burned bodies were discovered by two boys bicycling through the area at about 4:15—five hours after the estimated time of death.

The fifth victim was Jacqueline Rozanski, 31, who died about eight hours after lightning struck a tree she was standing under on a north St. Louis County golf course.

DRAWING POWER is under test here as onlookers move through the Gold Coast Art Fair in Chicago. The ice cream cone eater looks a bit nonplussed. The couple seems to be interested in details.

"Double Cropping" Is the Secret of a Profitable Garden

To gain maximum value from a vegetable garden "double cropping" is essential. By "double cropping" we mean gaining two plantings to each garden row — one to mature in summer, the other in fall.

For example, spinach is an early crop — it requires sowing as early in the spring as possible, so it matures before hot weather sets in. This will leave a space for another planting later in the summer to mature in fall when cooler weather returns.

Peas are another crop that bear early and are finished by early summer. That same space can then be dug over and replanted with another row of broccoli, cauliflower or Brussels sprouts to mature during fall of the same year.

Corn reaches a peak in midsummer, and the space it occupies can be replanted with a fall crop of cabbage, lettuce, or broccoli.

The following are some varieties of vegetables which can be double-cropped by a planting in spring followed by another in mid-summer for fall harvesting:

Certain vegetable varieties do better as a fall crop than a spring or summer crop. These include broccoli, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts. They prefer to be planted in mid-summer so they mature during the cool weather of fall. Brussels sprouts planted this way are especially valuable, since the green sprouts can be picked into December over most of the United States when store prices for green vegetables are high.

Other vegetables take a long growing season to mature properly. These include leeks, pumpkins, winter squash, salsify and parsnips, so double cropping with these is not possible.

The best group of vegetables to grow in a home vegetable garden are those which mature reasonably early and stay productive over the entire gardening season, surviving a wide range of conditions. These super-productive vegetables are zucchini squash, chard, parsley, tomatoes and peppers.

That's where you'll find the interesting news about the things which are important to you in your everyday life . . . news about job vacancies, places to live, automobiles for sale, recreational and leisure-time facilities and equipment, and a variety of miscellaneous items for sale.

No matter how sophisticated advertising and communication techniques become, Classified is still the one best way for person-to-person communication of needs and wants.

New city cemetery planned

50 years ago
May 30, 1924

Mrs. W. Burch of Paducah, Ky., attended the funeral of Mrs. James Nestor here Friday.

In the northeast corner of the Stallcup land on the Kingshighway road just south of the Wilson Park, is to be the location of Sikeston's new modern and up- to- date cemetery. Last Friday, A. A. Ebert and associates of St. Louis, came down and made a deal with L. M. Stallcup for the land. The laying out and platting of the cemetery will be done by the Joyce Surveying Co., of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. White returned Sunday from Excelsior Springs.

The Presbyterians organized a Sunday School in this city Sunday and enrolled about 20 members. W. M. Clifton was elected superintendent and Mildred Dowdy, secretary.

The case of the fun-loving husband

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Murray liked to go nightclubbing with clients and friends for alleged business reasons. And, when he got home, on each such occasion, his wife did some night clubbing of her own -- with a rolling pin.

As soon as he would tip-toe into the house, she'd let him have it. She'd batter him over the head with all the gusto of a nudist trying to swat a mosquito.

Finally, sporting more bumps on his head than a gypsy could possibly read in a year, Murray sued for a divorce, claiming cruel and inhuman treatment.

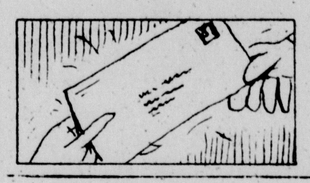

"It's either got to be the end of the marriage," he told the judge, "or it's going to be the end of me. I've been hit on the noggin so many times I'm beginning to think I've got a drum and bugle corp station in my head."

"Well, it's his own fault," responded his wife. "If my fun-loving husand would stop fooling around with other women, I'd stop clobbering him. He's not kidding anybody. When he goes nightclubbing, it's not for business. It's for monkey business. Any idiot knows that, including myself."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant fun- loving Murray a divorce?

This is how the jduge ruled: YES! The judge held, in effect, that while a husband may not be a paragon of virtue, a wife cannot go around beating him over the head and accusing him of unfaithfulness without proof.

(Based upon a 1962 Pennsylvania Superior Court Decision)

A Southern superstition warns that you should never put a letter in your girl friend's left hand, or your friendship will come to an end...on a bad note!

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

HELP THE
SMALL BUSINESSMAN

One important distinction between our society and some totalitarian societies is that here a man is free to begin, operate and — if he's fortunate — make money at a small business.

The economic impact of America's small businesses is enormous. Small businesses comprise 98 per cent of the country's total business units, employ 65 per cent of the nation's nongovernmental work force, and produce about 50 per cent of the U. S. gross national product.

Although thousands of small businesses fail each year for various reasons, the challenges of being your own boss continue to prove irresistible to millions of independent - minded Americans. These small businessmen are extremely important to the social as well as the economic fabric of the country Together, they foster a healthy climate in which competition helps assure that consumers get the best possible goods at the lowest possible prices.

In short, owners of small businesses have done a lot for us. Now there are a couple of things we as a nation ought to do for them.

In 1960, small- and medium- sized manufacturing firms had 50 per cent of this sector's assets and 41 per cent of its profits. By 1972 they had dwindled to only 33 per cent of the assets and 28 per cent of the profits. Recent studies have also shown that small- and-medium - sizes business pay taxes at twice the rate paid by big U. S. corporations — 51 per cent agains 26.9 per cent.

Two bills that experts believe would significantly help small businessmen compete are now before Congress. One of them, the Federal Paperwork Relief Act (H.R. 12269), is designed to relieve small businesses of some of the costly and time - consuming work required to fill out numerous mandatory Federal forms. The second bill, entitled the Small Business Tax Simplification and Reform Act (Evins- Bible Bill) would create a Federal committee to revise and simplify our tax system, and would reduce tax rates for firms earning less than $1 million in receipts a year.

We urge Congress to pass both of these bills. Small businessmen have done a lot for us. Let's do something for them.

* * *

You're wasting time thinking about what's going to happen - why not use that time to make things happen.

Thursday is Memorial Day. A day we Americans set aside to pay respect to our loved ones who have passed on, with special emphasis toward the war dead who made the supreme sacrifice.

Our churches and veteran organizations hold special services in memory of these men and women. We tell the war dead that they are remembered. And again we renew our promise that they will not have died in vain as we search for a lasting peace following the cease- fire in Vietnam.

While there is turmoil and injustice in the world despite efforts of the past three decades to bring world order, America must continue its leadership to meet the challenges ahead.

We must keep the faith with ourselves and those Americans we honor.

But Congress has said Monday, May 27 is the official Memorial Day.

A Sikeston man bought a supply of cannon firecrackers and put them in his bedroom. When cats began love affairs under his window, he lit one of the big firecrackers, waited until the fuse was sizzling close to the business point, and threw it at the cats. It was a great scheme while it lasted. The police asked him to quit on complaint of the neighbors.

A local reader of the Benton County Enterprise of Warsaw, brought in a clipping describing how one tells the difference between a Republican and a Democrat. During these days of earth-shaking seriousness in the world of politics, we thought it might not be a bad idea if we took time out for a smile, giggle, laugh or even a guffaw. It might be at our own expense, or those of the other party, depending on whether you have a sense of humor or you belong to that type of person who can see nothing funny whenever it is about him or his party. We call this last classification, "The external childishness of the narrow American adult."

Democrats buy most of the books that have been banned somewhere. Republicans form censorship committees and read them as a group.

Republicans consume three-fourths of all the rutabaga produced in this country. The remainder is thrown out.

Democrats name their children after currently popular sports figures, politicians and entertainers. Republicans children are named after their parents or grandparents, according to where the m ost money is.

Republicans tend to keep their shades drawn, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Democrats ought to, but don't.

Most of the stuff you see alongside the road has been thrown out of car windows by Democrats.

Democrats make up plans and then do something else. Republicans follow the plans their grandfathers made.

It has come to our attention that the local community is being plagued with harassing phone calls. Of course, I'm sure everyone knows of the seriousness of this type of pranksterism and the punitive measures that can be inflicted when the guilty persons is apprehended.

With the current modern equipment used by the telephone companies, it is much easier to trace the calls than in the past. Hence, the chances of being caught are much higher than in the past.

Just a thought to remember.

UNLIMITED ENERGY
A FATAL TOY?

An organization called the Committee for Electricity-Unlimited is promoting a letter- writing campaign to members of Congress, the Atomic Energy Commission and other government officials to urge that the nation institute a crash program into the development of energy from hydrogen fusion.

Many scientists, it says, foresee in this technology "the millenium for civilization" — an inexhastible supply of energy, with no pollution or dangerous wastes.

An editorial in a recent issue of National Wildlife magazine, in the form of an open letter to the President, makes the same call, along with similar programs in solar and geothermal power.

Just 1/200th of an ounce of deuterium found in a gallon of water, could, in a controlled fusion reaction, produce as much energy as 300 gallon of higher - octane gasoline. Nuclear fusion can be a reality by the year 2000, says the editorial, or sooner if the nation puts as much effort into it as it did with the Manhattan (atomic bomb) Project or the moon landing.

But while many scientists may see a millenium on the one hand, and on the other a period of severe economic and political dislocation if these "ultimate" energy sources are not harnessed in time, at least one scientist is fearful that men may succeed too well and too soon.

All life, points out University of California entomologist Bernd Heinrich, is constrained by the "carrying capacity" of its environment. Primitive hunter man, existing at the top of the food chain, was kept to a small population because the energy available to him was extremely limited.

Man later learned to farm and to utilize energy near the bottom of the chain where it was being captured from the sun by plants. His numbers increased enormously.

Next he learned to tap the stored energy of photosynthesis in the fossil fuels. Eventually this made possible the industrial revolution and helped to create the modern population explosion.

"Man presently has available, and is using, more energy than he or any other species has ever had before," says Henrich. "Yet we think we have not enough and we are clamoring for more, claiming that we are in an 'energy crisis.'"

An unlimited supply of energy has never been available to us or to any other species in the history of the earth, he says. Its gradual release over the decades could, in an insidious way, be as devastating as its sudden release in a hydrogen bomb.

It is possible that we could support a sustained population explosion for several hundred years and continue to multiply after there is "standing room only." We might be able to by-pass green plants by synthesizing carbohydrates and proteins. We could build cities on the deserts, on the mountains and in the seas, on all the lands that are presently fields and forests.

But along the way, the majority of animal species remaining now certainly vanish (and in this light it is ironic that the National Wildife Federation is among those pushing for "ultimate" energy). These species would no more be missed than the buffalo is missed in New York City.

The long-term solution to the "energy crisis," says Heinrich, is obviously population control rather than the development of more technology to provide m ore energy.

Cheap, inexhaustible energy — with it men would truly be as gods. But without godlike wisdom to accompany it, it could be like putting a stick of dynamite and a book of matches in the hands of a toddler.

One night a man called the police and said: "Police, police, there's a burglar downstairs and he's putting all our valuables into a sack. The voice on the other end said: "Keep calm. Don't worry. Hang up the phone, stay where you are and a squad car will be right over! Right over! Right over! Right over!"

NEED FOR JOBS
ON AFTER-TAX SAVINGS

Since 1971 over 5 million jobs have opened up in the United States, bringing total employment to 86 million.

According to Tax Foundation, Inc., the civilian labor force growth of 1.3 million per year average during the 1960's has been topped in each of the past three years. Some 2 million persons, above the number who retire or drop out for other reasons, have been entering the job market each year.

The private sector of the economy has been providing about 85 per cent of the new jobs. It will presumably have to continue to provide the bulk of new jobs if increased productivity on a national scale is the answer to our present inflation, says Tax Foundation.

But the same inflation that plagues the shopper makes it much more expensive to equip the new worker to do a job. To create just one new industrial job today takes an average capital investment of some $27,000. The assets per worker run much higher in some industries — $127,000 in the oil refining industry; $84,000 in mining.

On that basis the new capital to provide even 2 million new jobs could run as high as $54 billion, the Foundation estimates.

The need for investment capital to create new jobs is, however, just one of a number of the already huge and growing demands for capital from the private sector of the nation's economy.

Most employees expect improvement in their present jobs — higher pay, shorter hours, earlier retirement, etc. The only way business can meet those expectations without raising prices is by achieving greater productivity. Where possible this will involve more capital investment in improved technological processes or better machinery.

In addition there are huge demands for more capital for energy requirements, for housing and for pollution control.

That kind of investment capital can not come from printing- press dollars or easy expansion of bank loans in an inflationary situation. The only source of such capital, says the Foundation, is the savings from the after tax incomes of business and individuals.

A number of warnings have been sounded that the present-rate of savings and capital formation in the United States will fall considerably short of meeting the nation's developing capital needs.

Some economists feel that our country is about to pay a high price for tax laws that unlike those of some other major countries, are too heavily weighted against saving. Tax Foundation's economic consultant, Prof. C. Lowell Harriss of Columbia University, was among those who suggested to Congress earlier this year, that for once the nation's capital needs should be considered before the enactment of tax changes that would create more obstacles to saving and capital formation.

"I'm sure I can cure you," he said, "but it will require a delicate operation."

"How much?" asked the purchasing agent.

"My fee will be $2,400."

The P.A. roused himself with all his former energy. "You'll have to shave that price a bit, Doc!" he gasped. "I've had a better offer from the undertaker!"

THE POLICE
AND COMPUTERS

Computers, like mass radio communications, are now a vital part of police work. Larger law enforcement offices around the country have found computers to be a powerful aid in the processing of criminal records, matching fingerprints and piecing together information that modern enforcement techniques require. A highly sophisticated computer process recently led to the solution of a series of robbery- murder cases in Dallas. The cracking of the cases not only served justice but also probably saved lives of merchants who could have been potential victims.

While science and technology move forward in the field of criminology. the basic ingredient of good law enforcement is still the human element. Officers doing lone night patrol provide security against the killer, burglar and hijacker. The mental computer of a seasoned detective comes up with the clues that solve stubborn criminal cases. Human courage of the man behind the badge is probably the most vital of all the resources thrown into the battle against crime.

There is still another element in the war against those who break the law. It is the support of the law enforcement agencies by the citizenry as a whole. If the latter fails, then all fails. That is why we constantly urge the involvement of citizens in law enforcement programs. This column believes that the Law-Aid program, an informal, unofficial effort to support the police, deserves consideration by all who want to help conquer crime. If there is not a group working on Law-Aid in your community, now is a good time to start one. HLH

WASHINGTON — By any other name, there are hundreds off Field Marshal Cinques. There are scores of "liberation" sects, cells and armies. They now are a way of life not only in the big "Babylons" but in Southern communities unaccustomed to heavily armed "bands" or self-styled revolutionaries.

Some are infiltrated by the FBI and other internal security forces. Some are so small, so itinerant, so ad hoc that Federal agents can't seep into them. Some simply pick up Eldridge Cleaver's Black Liberation Army nom de (urban) guerre. Most are killers. None of this is fantasy. All of it, in one fashion or another, can be documented.

Their targets are varied.

There are dossiers to prove some of their objectives are industrial -- the big plants, power stations and fuel depots. Some have links to units in industrial sectors -- especially Detroit. Some still plan "political" kidnapings. For some of this, the authority is no less a specialist than FBI director Clarence Kelley.

Some are flamboyantly eager to put themselves on the record. This, for example, was evident at an unreported revolutionary conference in Atlanta, Ga., late in December. Here is an excerpt from an official description of the gathering:

"In December 1973, over 200 black extremists and revolutionaries met in Atlanta to form the African People's National Liberation Front for Independence in an effort to unify and coordinate their objectives and activities. The meeting was cohosted by the Republic of New Africa and the Africa People's Party, both black extremist and separatist groups."

Keynote speeches were stridently filled with cries for revolution, statements that the nation internally was "at war"; and that "independence for blacks will come through the application of destruction of capitalism and imperialism through the application of revolutionary theory and practice."

The emotional pitch was obvious. Each ersatz Field Marshal Cinque was attempting to carve for himself a piece of the action which might bring him a handful of supporters. Virtually none of the "revolutionists" had, or has, more than 20 or 30 followers. The following is small, but is big. But neither the support nor the funds spring from the broad- based balck communities across the U.S.

Toughest of all at the Atlanta revolutionary congress was -- and is -- Richard Henry, head of the Republic of New Africa.

The FBI wrapped him up in the following report:

"The key address by Richard Henry, head of the Republic of New Africa, advocated that blacks working aboveground must arm themselves lightly and legally while those underground should be heavily armed and should deal with such problems as 'police action.'"

Henry's outfit actually started in New York and Detroit years ago. One faction used to train for "the day" on a New York state farm. Then the action concentrated in Detroit. Finally it shifted to Mississippi.

What's quite significant here is the Detroit connection. The auto city has its own snake pit of real or imagined revolutionaries in auto plants. And some observers believe that this could be the route and pattern of infiltration of mass industries by neo-revolutionaries. In the "liberation" bands are men, articulate, knowledgeable and educated in local colleges.

They see the black trade-union membership as a possible target. This is of concern to labor leaders black and white alike. Few outsiders realize there are census and Department of Labor statistics showing the rate of black trade- union membership growth is slightly higher than that of whites.

It's estimated there now are some 450,000 black United Auto Workers members. And some 350,000 in the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO). And that black membership in such unions as the Transport Workers Union (AFL-CIO) is skyrocketing.

Thus the black revolutionaries could themselves infiltrate strategic installations, attempt recruitment or simply conspire to stir racial animosity as white bands have for decades right through the era of the SDS Weathermen. There is, of course, the ubiquitous Communist connection.

It took the FBI years to infiltrate the American Communist Party right on up to its highest command echelon. Today's problem is far more complex because this is a more sensitive field and fantastically fragmented.

But Cinque- ism did not die in the embers of that grim Los

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Seven Seas an Open Sewer

WASHINGTON — A highly confidential scientific study describes how oil wastes have poisoned sea life, jeopardized commercial fishing, tarred beaches and made an open sewer of the Seven Seas.

On each of the 100 numbered copies, the academy has stamped: "This is a working draft for internal use only, and it bears no official endorsement ... Not for Publication ... DO NOT QUOTE OR CITE."

But already, the academy has deleted a crucial section on the cancer threat from oil dumping. Scientists from Shell and Chevron oil companies will help prepare the final report. Therefore, we have decided to publish the findings before they are watered down.

The study shows that more than five million tons of oil wastes are dumped in the ocean each year by tankers, offshore industries, municipal oil users and oil- spilling motorboat engines.

The pro- oil scientists lobbied in the secret sessions, we have learned, to emphasize the natural seepage of urban auto wastes, which are washed into rivers and carried out to sea.

The strategy was to minimize Big Oil's sea fouling.

Although this section was weakened even before it got in draft form, it still shows 8,000 oil spills a year in U.S. waters alone, almost all of it in coastal waters.

These accidental spills, bilge flushings and other oil discharges are killing off birdlife, threatening entire species with extinction. Certain penguins, ducks and other report warns.

"These birds," it explains, "spend most of their lives on the surface of the sea ... They dive in response to disturbances, and if they dive on encountering floating oil, they become completely coated."

Because these gregarious birds flock together, "a small oil slick (can) cause very large casualties," declares the report. "One colony of guillemots (was) reduced by 250,000 in two years, and razorbills which were once numerous are now extinct as breeders."

A poignant passage in the report describes how mother birds coated with oil tried pathetically to hatch eggs but unwittingly covered the eggs with oil. This weakens or kills the baby birds as they are being hatched.

Birds that lay only a few eggs cannot make up for the losses caused by oil. On British coasts, according to the study, "90 per cent of stranded guillemots have been oiled." Their corpses are washed upon the beaches along a few miles of British coastline.

The oil companies have responded to the protests of environmentalists by touting "the Louisiana story." Offshore oil derricks, the companies allege, have actually increased sea life in the Gulf of Mexico.

The fishing catches, it's true, haven't diminished. But the report suggests this is because the fishermen often have shifted locations.

Meanwhile the 25,000 wells and other oil operations have dumped 1.1 million barrels of oil in the Gulf, tainting the oysters with oil odors and tastes. Oil company canaling and dredging have also let salt water pour into the coastal marshes which eventually destroy oyster and shrimp breeding.

"The time period that the Louisiana fisheries can withstand these alterations is Only the amazing ability of oysters and shrimp to reproduce under adverse conditions have kept fishing alive in Louisiana, the report suggests.

On the other side of the globe in the Caspian Sea, a combination of petroleum pollution and a drop in the water level have reduced the annual fishing catch from more than 600 million pounds to about 240 million.

The study details how oil slicks and spills poison sea life. The hydrocarbons "invade nerve tissue -- spinal cord especially." Mullet exposed to oil suddenly suffer strange fat deposits in their liver. Other fish simply smother or die of shock. No more than "two-cycle outboard motor affluent," the study found, caused fish to "begin gasping after 24 hours."

Lobsters in polluted waters produced tainted eggs which taste like paraffin. The oily waters could also spoil the lobster meat, causing "tainting of the white meat, of the tail and finally the claw meat became tainted but only in the most severe cases of poluution," sayd the report.

Another oil company myth demolished by the report is the cheery talk of cleaning up oil spills. The study shows that mechanical means, although usually safe enough, are often ineffective. But the ballyhooed "dispersants," which seem to make oil disappear, can cause even worse damage than the oil.

The dispersants may make it easy for marine animals to ingest the oil into their system. Dispersants may also pollute fresh water or even brackish water longer, with greater danger, than oil. When the Torrey Canyon gushed oil into the sea, it was the dispersants that did much of the damage.

Committee warns Nixon about continued refusal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today warned President Nixon he may be providing grounds for impeachment by refusing to honor committee subpoenas for Watergate tapes.

By a vote of 28 to 10, it authorized the sending of a letter to Nixon stating that his refusal will be weighed by the committee when it votes on whether to recommend his impeachment.

"In meeting their constitutional responsibility," the letter says, "committee members will be free to consider whether your refusals warrant the drawing of adverse inferences concerning the substance of the material and whether your refusals in and of themselves constitute a ground for impeachment."

An earlier draft had said members would be "obliged" to draw such an inference, but it was softened at the suggestion of Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md.

Eight Republicans joined with 20 Democrats in approving the letter, which was signed by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

The letter was a response to Nixon's letter of May 22 saying no further Watergate matter would be provided.

In his May 22 letter, Nixon based his refusal to supply 11 tapes subpoenaed by the committee on the grounds that it would lead to a never ending process of continuing requests.

Nixon said, "Such a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations" would fatally weaken the office of the presidency.

Nixon also told the committee it already had "the full story of Watergate insofar as it relates to presidential knowledge and presidential actions."

Approval of a response to Nixon's letter was only one of several matters to be settled by the committee today after the completion of the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence.

White House lawyer James D. St. Clair said the committee's impeachment case does not amount to much, but some committee members disagreed Wednesday.

"Very few prosecutors ever have this kind of evidence available," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a former federal prosecutor, after the committee wound up the preliminary presentation of Watergate evidence Wednesday.

The committee will move next week into new areas in its inquiry, and will vote today on opening some of next week's hearings to the public. It also will decide on a response to Nixon's refusal to give it any more Watergate evidence.

Both Democrats and Republicans, in separate party caucuses earlier this week, decided to support a request by the panel's chief counsel for approval of a new subpoena at the meeting today.

St. Clair, who has been committed to attend the committee's closed sessions as an observer, said if the impeachment inquiry was an ordinary trial he would be tempted to rest his defense now.

"Nothing substantial has been presented," he told newsmen. He also said he thought the committee should call Watergate witnesses and clear up any remaining questions on the cover-up before proceeding to other subjects.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said at a news briefing that he hopes members will wait until the entire case, which involves dozens of allegations in several different areas, has been presented before expressing any judgments.

At the briefing, special counsel John M. Doar disclosed that proposed articles of impeachment were being prepared by the staff, but he warned against drawing conclusions about the activity. He said the work was being done so the material would be ready if the committee decides it is needed.

Most members regard Watergate as the heart of the impeachment inquiry and some did not hesitate Wednesday to say where they think matters stood.

Rangel said he was convinced on the basis of the White House-edited transcripts that Nixon committed impeachable offenses.

Reaction to the evidence presented so far generally followed party lines.

"I think a slight case has been made, but not substantial enough to support impeachment," said Rep. Henry Smith III, R-N.Y.

"They haven't shown me anything yet to make me think the President is guilty of anything," said Rep. Carlos Moorhead, R-Calif.

But Rep. William Hungate, D-Mo., said he thinks the case was "very substantial." And Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., said "very damaging items of evidence" were presented.

Mid-East stability chances improved by disengagement

The Syrian-Israeli military disengagement accord dramatically improves chances for Middle East stability. And so Syria's anxious ally, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, can begin breathing a little easier.

But his relief must be diluted by an acute awareness of how fragile such an agreement can be.

Bringing Syria under the disengagement tent with Israel and Egypt not only was a breakthrough of incalculable importance; it was another minor miracle of the sort that is becoming a specialty of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Having produced this wonder, however, Kissinger now must apply his legerdemain to the even more impossible-looking job of turning truce into peace.

Syria long has been the enfant terrible of the Arab world. Her political leaders are invariably under severe pressures generated by the highly emotional Palestine issue. When Kissinger set out to bring Syria into an agreement of any description with the arch-enemy, it seemed he had taken on a hopeless task.

Meantime, Egypt's President Sadat, eager to get his nation on the road to economic health, must have had many an uneasy moment. All alone in his military disengagement pact with Israel, he was out on a long limb and looking uncomfortable.

Had Syria continued to hold out for long, Sadat could have been subject to the same sort of difficulty that plagued him before the October war, when intellectuals demanded an end, one way or another, to the situation of "no war, no peace."

When Arab terrorists burst into the picture so bloodily at a critical moment in the Syria-Israel negotiations, it had seemed all Kissinger's patient labor would go down the drain.

Now the scene shifts to the Geneva conference, and if the Syria-Israel phase had looked tough, the Geneva one can be much tougher. Peace, in fact, is a long way off.

The terror situation still can threaten the fragile agreement, since there can hardly be a secure guarantee against acts by fanatical extremists.

For Israel, security is the name of the game. For Syria, it is "the legitimate rights of the Palestine people," a rhetorical demand that can mean many things, even up to dismantlement of the Israeli state. Some Israelis think the Syrians mean just that.

Syria will continue demanding back all the Golan Heights area it lost in 1967, but Israel will be far from eager to give up a security bird-in-hand for a promise in the bush.

Withdrawal from the Golan Heights could make Upper Galilee once again an easy target. Withdrawal from Mt. Hermon would deprive Israel of a clear view to Damascus, a warranty against surprise.

The Geneva phase will last a long time, but the outlook seems a lot more hopeful this month than it did last.

U.S. negotiating may prevent oil embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's help in negotiating the Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement virtually eliminates the possibility of another Arab oil embargo, a U.S. energy expert says.

"This agreement removes the major impediment to good relations between the United States and the Arabs," John Wilhelm, director of producer country affairs in the Federal Energy Office, said Wednesday.

Wilhelm's statement capped a day of good energy news for the country. The federal energy chief said electric utilities should have enough fuel to avoid power problems this summer, and it was reported that for the first time this year there are no gasoline shortages at the end of the month.

The diplomatic breakthrough in the Mideast, achieved after 32 days of mediation by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, came just three days before the Arabs were scheduled to meet and review their oil-export policy.

"I think with this impediment removed we can be reasonably assured that Arab oil production will increase, especially in Saudi Arabia," Wilhelm said.

He had made a recent visit to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya and reported Arab willingness to increase oil shipments, but said it hinged on U.S.-aided progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Wilhelm said he could not guess how fast or how far Arab oil production might be increased.

Meanwhile, federal energy chief John C. Sawhill said the nation's electric utilities should have enough fuel oil to meet power needs this summer, provided the public and utilities continue to conserve energy.

Sawhill announced that 89 utilities have been allocated 41.9 million barrels of residual fuel oil for June.

If the supply remains at or above current levels, there should be no power shortages due to lack of fuel oil with the possible exception of the East Coast, Sawhill said.

And the American Automobile Association said Memorial Day weekend travel and end-of-the-month gasoline allocation shortage failed to cause any deterioration in the nation's gasoline supplies this week.

It was the first time this year that the AAA has reported no deterioration in gasoline supplies at the end of a month.

CHAFFEE — A change in the visiting hours at Chaffee General Hospital has been announced by the hospital administration.

The new visiting hours are from 2 to 8 p.m. daily.

Morning visitors will not be permitted unless a patient is undergoing surgery that morning or is in critical condition.

3 arrested

Police today announced the arrest of John Leroy Chiles, 224 N. Handy St., rear, for assault and battery, two counts of peace disturbance and indecent exposure; Otis Applewhite Sr., 106 Westgate St., assault and battery; and Dennis Alan Overbey, 534 Carroll Ave., careless and imprudent driving.

Sirica won't turn over tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today refused to turn over tapes of four White House conversations sought by the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

Sirica said he was legally powerless to meet the request because the tapes of the four conversations, two on June 20, 1972, and the others from June 30 and Sept. 15 of the same year, were delivered to him for rulings on claims of executive privilege by President Nixon.

He said it is up to Nixon whether or not the tapes should be turned over to the committee.

Citing this as a special case, Sirica said in a legal memo answering the Judiciary Committee, "The court does not in any way imply that the recordings sought are irrelevant to the impeachment investigation."

Sirica said his decision "is based rather on the wholly unrelated ground that the court simply has no role to play in the matter."

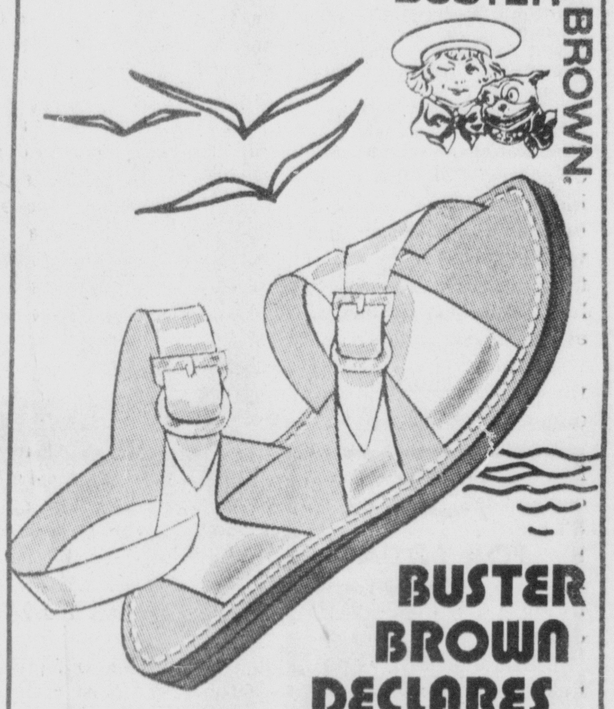

The judge said if the committee is turned down by the White House, then it must decide whether to pursue the tapes in the courts once again.

Dancers prepare for annual recital

Numbers will consist of tap, acrobatics, ballet, jazz and novelty dancing.

A dress rehearsal will be held Friday and pictures will be made of students.

Solists will perform

Soloists will also perform Saturday at the Patti Simmons School of Dance recital in Sikeston Activity Center. Here, Deanna Debo strikes a pose as she practices for the annual affair.

Mrs. Carroll given best program award

Mrs. Ella Louise Carroll was given a special award at the May meeting of Xi Epsilon Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority for presenting the best program to the club in 1973-74.

The program was "High Moments With Nature", during which she reminded the chapter that one does not have to leave his own yard to enjoy the beautiful things of nature.

Mrs. Carroll discussed a variety of flowers and shrubs.

Risco Bible school class entertained

The group was shown various procedures of making ceramics from slip, trimming greenware and firing it in a kiln. They were informed about porcelain procedures and china painting, and were shown an array of articles made by Mrs. Zarecor.

MONDAY

Morley Community Betterment Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the community building to decide whether the club should continue or disband.

THURSDAY

Ann Landers

Male reader expresses feelings on virginity, sex without love

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you asked teen- age boys to write and tell you how they felt about losing their virginity. I laughed when I read the letter because somehow one doesn't think of boys as "virgins." Then I stopped laughing and began to think seriously about my first sexual experience.

I was 16 and the girl was 15. I really didn't like her very much but I wanted to see if I could score because all the guys in my crowd were talking about the chicks they were knocking off and I was the only one who didn't have anything to my credit.

It was a crummy thing I did. I lied and told the girl I ahd been crazy about her for a long time -- a real snow job.

The whole "affair" lasted five minutes. I felt like a heel immediately after. When I took her home I didn't even kiss her goodnight.

I never called her for a date after that and I'm sure I hurt her feelings something terrible. I used that dumb kid for my own selfish purposes and to this day I regret it.

Sex without love is lousy. I hope every guy who reads this will remember what I am saying. It took me two years to get over that experience. The next time I had sex, it was with a girl I really cared about, and I married her. -- No Name Please

Dear No Name: Thanks for telling it like it was.

Dear Ann Landers: I am beginning to think I have bats in the belfry. Please tell me if you think I'm crazy.

When I was in my early 20s I enjoyed men my own age, and I married one. We had a good marriage for eight years, until Jim died in a tragic accident. It took me a solid year to get over it.

When I once again began to enjoy the company of men, they were in their 30s, and so was I. Now I'm in my 50s. I never remarried but I have several gentleman friends who are also in their 50s.

The point I want to make is this: Why do so many young girls run after men who are 20 and 30 years older than themselves; It's got to be money because these girls are not chasing older men of modest means. It's always some rich geezer. I call it prostitution no matter how you look at it.

Don't these girls realize that when the glamour wears off they'll be bored stiff and stuck playing nurse to some sick old buzzard; Why don't you tell them, Ann? -- Seen It Happen

Dear Happen: When they ask me, I tell 'em. But everyone knows of at least one exception to which they fiendishly point to prove you're all wet. (I know a few myself.)

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers recovered alcoholics and handicapped people make the best employes. As the personnel director for a large firm I can vouch for them -- both men and women.

The A.A.s and the handicapped are my most valuable employes. Their attendance record is by far the best and their job performance superior. It means a great deal to these people that someone had enough faith in them to give them a chance.

Please, Ann, urge your readers to hire recovered alcoholics and the handicapped -- Proof Positive

Dear Proof: Right you are! And I'd like to add a third group. Ex- convicts have proven to be excellent employes. Come on, folks, give these people a break. They really need it.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up to one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Students receive Junior American Citizen awards

NEW MADRID — The Lucy Jefferson Lewis Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution has announced that 22 students in the chapter's district received national Junior American Citizens awards for this year's annual JAC contest.

The contest was open for students from kindergarten through high school and included essays, posters, tapes, plays and various handmade historical artifacts.

The theme for this year's contest was "America's Future, My Responsibility", and the Missouri JAC chairman, Miss Dorothy Conway, presented all first place winners a $25 U.S. Savings Bond on behalf of the National JAC Committee.

The most outstanding entries received a bicentennial award, a stamp commemorating the Boston Tea Party. This commemorative stamp was presented to Cheryl Tanner for her entry under a "special project", which were original drawings depicting her ideas of America's future as seen in the church, school and community. Only one bicentennial award is given in this category. Miss Tanner also received a first place award of a $25 savings bond and also a Continental Congress certificate.

Other first place winners in New Madrid High School were Kenneth Lucy, Kevin Ivy, Ronnie Hooser, Lisa Copeland and Craig Hunter. Each of these students received a $25 bond and a Continental Congress award on his poster entry. Ruth Ann Canady received a third place award. Mary Catherine Sides, Loretta Beaher and Chris Tanner received honorable mention awards.

Cheryl Tanner

Winners in the New Madrid grade school were Charlotte Ramsey, who received a first place bond for her play. Mrs. Judy Hunt, director of the Abraham Lincoln JAC club, received an honorable mention; Linda Jane White received a second place award of $10 and a Continental Congress award for her essay entry; and Martin Lewis received an honorable mention award for his poster.

Winners in the New Madrid Junior High School were the "Free and the Brave" and "The Twentieth Century Pioneers" JAC clubs. Each of the clubs won an honorable mention for its scrapbook.

At Southwest Elementary School in Dexter, first place awards were presented to the Revere's Gallopers Club for a group program. The Thomas Jefferson, Junior Red, White and Blue and Daniel Boone JAC Clubs won first place for a special project and program.

The same four JAC Clubs also won first place prizes for scrapbooks. A second place award was also presented to the Revere's Gallopers Club for its scrapbook entry.

A total of $281 was received by the Lucy Jefferson Lewis Chapter to be awarded through the National JAC Contest.

GOOD OLD BOY
by Willie Morris
(Avon 18077/$.95
128pp.)

GOOD OLD BOY, Willie Morris' reminiscences of his childhood in Yazoo City, Mississippi, makes its paperback appearance as an Avon young adult title in January. The "good old boys" were Morris' childhood pals, Bubba, Muttonhead, Peewee, Henjie, and Spit and Morris recalls the adventures of their childhood days in a series of anecdotes.

Willie Morris, who was Editor- in- Chief of Harper's Magazine from 1967- 1971, is the author of a definitive non-fiction study of Southern mores: Yazoo: Integration in a Deep Southern Town, and of North Toward Home. His latest novel, The Last of the Southern Girls, published in hardcover in 1973, will head Avon's April 1974 list.

White House faces new court deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is facing new Watergate court deadlines, on the orders of a federal judge and by invitation of the Supreme Court.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell has ordered Nixon to state in writing by today that he understands charges in the plumbers case against former presidential assistants may be dismissed if subpoenaed notes and records are not provided.

And, Nixon was given until today to reply formally to a request by the Watergate special prosecutor that a lower appeals court be bypassed so the Supreme Court can decide whether he may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial.

If Nixon refuses to turn over the evidence sought by the defendants in the plumbers case, new ammunition would be provided to the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry.

Ehrlichman, Colson and three others are accused of violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding. Fielding's office was broken into in 1971 in an acknowledged search for information about Ellsberg, the former defense analyst who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

At a pretrial hearing last Friday, Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair claimed executive privilege in attempting to dissuade the judge from his determined effort to obtain the notes of meetings sought by Colson and Ehrlichman.

He has said repeatedly that a final refusal by Nixon likely would result in dismissal of the charges because if the government withholds evidence beneficial to the defense then it may not prosecute its case.

In the second case, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski is asking the Supreme Court to leapfrog the U.S. Court of Appeals and decide if Nixon may withhold evidence subpoenaed in the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled to start Sept. 9.

St. Clair has indicated he will seek to have the matter argued first in the appeals court in Washington. Jaworski argues an early hearing is necessary because the normal judicial process would delay the coverup trial until next spring.

The justices normally meet Friday, when they may decide whether to give the case an early hearing.

—The Internal Revenue Service assessed Nixon with a 5 per cent negligence penalty in connection with more than $400,000 in back taxes, the Baltimore Sun reported. The penalty was included, but not publicized, in the IRS finding April 3 that Nixon owed $432,787 plus interest, the newspaper said. The IRS declined comment.

—Two lawyers of the Watergate prosecution team investigating the ITT case resigned. Their impending departure, following the resignation of their task force chief, will leave the team without a lawyer who has worked on the case fulltime.

Legislators will try to get campaign reform on ballot

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A group of legislators disenchanted with the prospect of their fellow lawmakers agreeing on a strong campaign reform package have decided to start a petition drive to get the issue on the November ballot.

"There's only five weeks until the deadline but we're going to try," says Rep. Steve Vossmeyer, D-St. Louis.

Vossmeyer and Rep. Jack Buechner, R-Kirkwood, planned to announce the start of the petition drive at 10 a.m. Thursday at the St. Louis Press Club.

They need at least 61,877 signatures by July 5 and must get signatures by 5 per cent of the legal voters in seven of the state's 10 congressional districts.

Vossmeyer said he hoped to get the support of the lobbying group, common cause, whose leader had talked about starting a petition drive to change the law after a campaign reform bill failed in the closing minutes of this year's legislative session.

Other legislators behind the petition drive, he said, are Reps. Harold Lowenstein, R-Kansas City, James Baker, D-Kansas City, James Conway, D-St. Louis, Sue Shear, D-Clayton, George Donegan, R-Springfield, and George K. Hoblitzelle, R-Ladue.

"Our bill has the structure of the final conference bill but it's much tougher," Vossmeyer said. "It doesn't look to me like we can get a strong bill in the legislature, and you can't put the total blame on the legislature."

Vossmeyer noted that the campaign reform issue was before the legislature this year, in 1973 and in the 61-day special session last winter.

"It indicates to me that not everybody who said they were for it really were for it," he said.

He said the reporting requirements are stricter than the conference committee bill that died on April 30. The conferees had difficulty agreeing on whether the secretary of state should be on a commission to enforce the law.

The petition proposal excludes the secretary of state from a six-member bipartisan commission to be selected by the governor from 18 nominees submitted by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Records would have to be kept on all contributions of over $5 and all contributions of $25 or more would be filed with the secretary of state and made public. The total anonymous contributions would be limited to $500 for each election, primary and general.

Banks, trust companies and labor unions could not contribute at all, but voluntary organizations comprised of bankers or labor officials could. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education could contribute.

Any campaign committee must report any amount over $100 that it gives to another committee. The contributions and expenditure reports must be filed twice before the election and once afterward.

All candidates must file reports but those who spend less than $500 per election can file exemption statements and will have to file the complete list. Receipts must be kept on all cash contributions of $50 or more.

The varius committee treasurers must get the candidate's permission before they spend money on his behalf. Contributions by a candidate or his immediate family — parents, grandparents, child or grandchild or brother or sister—will be limited to $35,000 per election on statewide races and $25,000 on other races.

A person or organization can contribute up to $50,000 for one candidate for each election, or $100,000 during the campaign.

Under present law, a candidate can spend up to $600,000 on each election for statewide office.

The elections commission would have subpoena power. Violations would bring up to a $5,000 fine or one year in jail. Violation by a candidate would prevent him from running for re-election.

5,222 farmers apply for FHA disaster loans

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Some 5,222 Missouri farm families from 95 counties have made applications for low-interest disaster loans under an amendment introduced by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., last year.

As of April 30, 671 applications averaging $7,260 per loan have been approved, with the remainder awaiting final disposition. The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) estimates that about 95 per cent of all applications ultimately will be approved.

Eagleton's amendment required the FHA to make loans available to farmers who suffered storm damage between Dec. 26, 1972, and April 20, 1973 at an interest rate of one per cent with up to $5,000 of the principal forgiven. The amendment was enacted into law late in 1973.

"I introduced this provision when I learned the FHA was offering farmers five per cent loans," Eagleton said, "while homeowners and small businessmen were receiving loans at only one per cent."

This month the FHA announced two additional Missouri counties, Grundy and Linn, are also now eligible for the loans. An estimated 125 farm families in Grundy and between 75 and 100 families in Linn are expected to benefit from the action.

To be eligible, Eagleton said, a farmer must have suffered some production loss or some physical loss to his property as a result of floods or storms between Dec. 26, 1972, and April 20, 1973.

According to the FHA, heavy rains fell on Grundy County in the period of Jan. 1, 1973 to April 20, 1973, and a snowstorm hit the county on April 9, 1973. Linn County had excessive rainfall between September 1972 and April 19, 1973 and a snowstorm on April 9, 1973.

Eligible farmers should contact their FHA county supervisor before June 20, the cutoff date for applications. Qualified applicants are eligible for loans at one per cent interest with up to $5,000 of the principal canceled. Applicants will not have to show they are unable to obtain credit elsewhere, as was previously the requirement.

Commissioner of administration named

James, 34, has been directing the office but Bond, as acting commissioner of administration, had to sign warrants and other documents of the office.

James was appointed to the position in January, 1973 but Bond withdrew the nomination when the question of James' meeting the five-year state residency requirement was raised.

Noting that James returned to Missouri in 1969 after serving on the faculty of the University of Tulsa, Bond commented at a news conference:

"By June of this year, he will have been a bona fide resident of Missouri consistently for more than five years, and the technical objection to his appointment will have been removed."

At the time of the original appointment, another question of James' failure to hold a masters degree in public administration as required for the job also was mentioned.

But Bond reiterated today that the law also provides for experience to substitute for the degree requirement, contending that the nearly 10 years that James has served as a certified public accountant.

No inquest planned into SLA shootout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi says no inquest is planned, despite a request for one, into the deaths of six Symbionese Liberation Army members killed in a shootout with police.

Dr. L.S. Wolfe had asked for an inquest into the death of his son, William, and the five other SLA members who died in a more than hour-long gunbattle with Los Angeles police almost two weeks ago.

Wolfe, of Emmaus, Pa., arrived here Wednesday to press his demand and to seek help from the American Civil Liberties Union in forcing the issue. The local ACLU, which has criticized the shootout, said it was considering Wolfe's request.

The coroner's spokesman said, "We know of no reason to have an inquest. Nothing in our research has shown up anything irregular."

In an interview with television station KNXT here, Wolfe said Los Angeles police assured him before the raid on the SLA hideout that "the last thing we will do is go in with our guns blazing."

But Wolfe said: "They didn't know who they had killed, they didn't know who was in the house, they didn't know who they were trying to kill." Identities of the victims were not learned until the day after the gunbattle.

There was no immediate comment from police. They have said before that when they gave occupants in the house a chance to surrender, the response from the SLA was protracted gunfire.

Meanwhile, today's Chicago Tribune reported that authorities believe on the basis of a notebook found near the shootout site that newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was so fully trusted by her onetime SLA kidnapers that they permitted her to stand solitary guard against police raids through the night.

11 accident patients treated

Kenneth White, 44, Bertrand, bruised spine at work; Tonya Washington, 2, Sikeston, caught right arm in wringer washer; Bill Bollinger, 24, Benton, fractured right big toe and cut middle and big toes at work; and Danny Carmack, 19, Sikeston, burned right arm at work.

You can wrap turkey legs in foil and cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about two hours. The meat, cut from the bone and diced, will make good salads and sandwich fillings and may also be used in casseroles.

Graham will not forsake Nixon

"One cannot but deplore the moral tone implied in these papers," Graham said Tuesday, ending a three-week silence about the released texts he had imposed until he had time to examine them himself.

A long-time personal friend and spiritual adviser to President Nixon, Graham said that "what comes through in these tapes is not the man I have known many years. Other mutual friends have made the same observation."

But the evangelist said Nixon remains "my friend, and I have no intention of forsaking him now. Nor will I judge him as a man in totality on the basis of these relatively few hours of conversation under such severe pressure.

"But I would be neither his friend nor God's servant if I did not point out the righteousness of God's demands at such a time as this."

Graham said he last had spoken with Nixon about three weeks ago by telephone while conducting a crusade in Phoenix, Ariz.

He said he since has spent several days reading the White House-released text, and had "thought about it and prayed about it" before issuing his statement.

"I just wish the whole thing had never happened," he said.

"We have lost our moral compass. We must get it back."

Although "we know that other presidents have used equally objectionable language—it does not make it right. 'Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain' is a commandment which has not been suspended, regardless of any need to release tensions."

Graham did not mention the Rev. John McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest on Nixon's White House staff who has defended the President's use of profanity as an outgrowth of a need to release tensions. But he used virtually the same words, and in doing so disputed McLaughlin.

Chaffee policeman dismissed for failure to obey

The dismissal was based on an incident in which a police car was damaged while chasing a pickup truck driven by Mark Newton of Perkins into the Delta area. Several shots reportedly were fired at the truck which attained speeds of 90 miles per hour in an effort to elude the police car. The police car had chased the truck into a farmer's lane when the damage to the car was sustained.

Chief Coats told the council that Bailey said the chief, mayor and council were stupid for issuing a directive stating that city police cars could not go over two miles past the city limits in a pursuit and he was not going to abide by it.

According to Coats, Bailey also stated that if the council fired him he was going to bring a law suit against the council members.

The council issued a warning to other policemen that suspension or dismissal would be the result of any other violation of police rules and regulations in the future.

Council members stated complaints have been received that the policemen are not patrolling the downtown area at night and are not checking the doors and rear entrances of businesses.

Other compaints received by the council have been that the police are using their sirens unnecessarily and driving at high rates of speed through the city during the night and that police cars are parked on the wrong side of the street for extended periods.

Cancer memorial fund established

A cancer memorial fund has been established in memory of the late Benjamin Ray Burns Sr., a life-long resident of Sikeston who died April 6.

The fund is sponsored by Bank of Sikeston and Ferguson Medical Group and will help establish a cancer research library at Ferguson Clinic.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 30, the 150th day of 1974. There are 215 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1883, a report that New York's new Brooklyn Bridge was about to collapse created panic. Six persons on the bridge were trampled to death.

In 1942, during World War II, more than 1,100 British bombers pounded Cologne, Germany.

In 1961, the dictator of the Dominican Republic, Rafael Trujillo, was assassinated.

In 1963, the official death toll in a windstorm which struck East Pakistan was put at 10,000.

Ten years ago: U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in Saigon, said the United States was determined to force Communist China and North Vietnam to leave their neighbors in Southeast Asia alone.

Thought for today: What we see depends mainly on what we look for. John Lubbock, English astronomer and mathematician's 1803-1865.

Firemen called to gas leak

Firemen were called at 3:03 p.m. Wednesday to the Shirley Carter apartment, 502 W. Gladys St., when a gas leak was detected in the apartment.

Firemen said the gas was leaking from a loose pipe in a closet. There was no fire, and workmen from Associated Natural Gas Co. tightened the pipe.

Thieves get $200

Thieves took $200 from the Joe Beck home, 947 Vernon St., between 9:20 and 11:20 Wednesday, according to police.

Bonds reduced for trio charged with possession

BENTON — Bonds were reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 for three Arkansas residents arraigned Wednesday in Magistrate Court before Judge Lloyd Briggs for possession of eight pounds of marijuana.

The trio was arrested Sunday at Cape Girardeau Municipal Airport in extreme northern Scott County, after Sheriff John Dennis received a tip from an unidenfitied person that the men would land at the airport with approximately eight pounds of marijuana.

The men were apprehended when they attemped to get back on the plane.

An attorney was appointed to defend Betty Jean Huffman, also known as Betty Oliver, on a May 18 charge of writing a $50.77 bad check to Barkett's Big Star Market.

John Drury of Cape Girardeau was ordered to surrender his driver's license for 30 days after he pleaded guilty to an improper parking charge. He was also fined $61.50.

Trial was set on June 5 for Oscar Johnson of Norwood after he pleaded not guilty to a careless and imprudent driving charge.

Michael Lynn Frazier of New Madrid was fined $35, given a 60-day suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for one year after he pleaded guilty to following too closely.

Fifty-two persons fined for speeding included:

Frederick Junior Butler of Sikeston, $27.50; James Austin Tyler of Oran $29.50; Gaines Beck of Sikeston, $26.50; Ronald Cletus Ervin of Cape Girardeau, $27.50; David Grays of St. Louis, $29.50; Roy Lee Herron of Idlewild, Tenn., $35.50; Ben Jordan of Clarksdale, $31.50;

Nancy Charlene Matthew of St. Louis, $29; Tommy Kelso of Benton, $29.50; Patricia Thomas McCann of Cape Girardeau, $29.50; Barbara Ann Patrick of Cape Girardeau, $29.50; Steven Mark Packett of Farmington, $31.50; Moss Charles Watson of Ironton, $61.50.

Gerald Rudie Gratewiel of St. Peters, $13; James Roosevelt Hicks of St. Louis, $45; Harold Dean Harp of Ellisville, $13; Harrison Edward Jones of St. Louis, $11; Ida Bell Kelly of Chicago, $12; Michael Brian Kelly of Lawrence, Kan., $13; Richard Keith Mocts of Wentville, $19;

World news in brief

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — President Nixon was assessed a 5 per cent negligence penalty by the Internal Revenue Service in connection with 467,000 he owes in back income taxes and interest, a newspaper said. The Baltimore Sun, quoting sources familiar with the case, said the IRS included the penalty on April 3 when it assessed Nixon $432,787 in back taxes, plus interest. The Sun said the dollar amount of the alleged negligence penalty could not be determined. Nixon has said he would pay the taxes, but the White House has refused to say whether a negligence penalty was involved. The IRS refused comment. A negligence penalty does not amount to a finding of fraud.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Despite effective vaccines, epidemics of childhood diseases still could erupt nationwide partly because of the complacency of parents in having their children immunized, a health official warns. "The ho-hum attitude of parents that immunization can be put off until a child enrolls in school is part of the reason for the problem," Dr. John J. Witte, chief of the immunization branch of the Center for Disease Control, said. A recent massive immunization program by the center has shown some results, Witte said. Polio vaccinations, for example, are up at least 20 per cent over a comparable period in 1973.

DETROIT (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency will fight "tooth and nail" to prevent its responsibility for rating auto fuel economy from being turned over to auto makers, an EPA official says. Eric O. Stork, who heads the EPA's emissions and fuel economy testing programs, said the agency would resist increasing pressures from auto makers and the White House to relinquish its economy tests. The White House's Office of Management and Budget has recommended the EPA continue the testing through the 1975 model year, with the Commerce Department's Bureau of Standards taking over in 1976. The bureau eventually would yield responsibility to the auto makers themselves, who would conduct the tests under government supervision.

A MATTER OF TASTE

NEW YORK (AP) — Baby may not arrive with a silver spoon in his mouth but chances are he's equipped with his very own sweet tooth. While it may not show, it definitely is there, researchers at Monell Chemical Senses Center at the University of Pennsylvania proved recently.

They offered 2-day-old babies a variety of waters — plain, sweet, salty and even sour. The majority preferred the sugar water and drank more of it. Water is vital to us from infancy to old age. It performs two vital functions for us: it acts as a solvent to transport nutrient materials to cells and helps remove waste products.

Hart displeased

Jim Hart, the most successful quarterback the St. Louis Football Cardinals have had since Charley Johnson left the scene, payed a visit to Sikeston Saturday afternoon as a guest of the J. C. Penney store and was busy signing autographed pictures for his many fans in the community.

He told one fan that he guaranteed that the Cardinals would win more games this season than last.

Jim seemed to be very displeased with the new rules which have been put into effect by the owners of the football teams for next season. "The rules will not effect my play any," said Hart. "I had just as soon see the same rules for the receivers that have always been," he said referring to the new bump and run rule.

"The new rules were made to benefit the fans, to make the game more exciting," he said.

Jim doesn't like the overtime period at all. "It will only produce more injuries." "Fatigue sets in in the fourth quarter."

"The owners set up the rules without consulting the players," he said. "They keep saying it's abusiness. If it's a business let's treat it like a business," Hart went on.

Homer beats Gibby

The 5-foot-10 third baseman, who hit .167 against it in 1973, atoned for part of the frustration Wednesday night with a three-run homer ushering his team to a 5-2 National League win.

"I didn't even know about all the troubles I'd had with them until I read about it this winter," said Cey, who keyed an 11-hit Dodger attack.

"But that really doesn't mean much," he mused. "We play only 12 games a year against the. It's what you do over the course of a whole season that counts."

Cey's homer, his fourth, made a winner of left-hander Tommy John, 8-1, who pitched 6 1-3 innings, and a loser of the Cards' struggling Bob Gibson, 3-5, who was protecting a 2-1 lead.

"I don't think Id have gotten that pitch if it'd been at any other time of the ball game," he reflected of Gibson's sixth inning fast ball.

"It was up and in," he noted. "I think he was just trying to get out in front in that situation."

Ahead of the blast the 38-year-old Gibson had had the better of the 6-foot-3 John on the basis of Reggie Smith's run-scoring double and Mike Tyson's run-producing single.

But hot-hitting Steve Garvey nicked him for a two-out hit in the decisive rally and Joe Ferguson followed with the Dodgers' seventh hit.

Cey strode to the plate and had barely squared off in the batter's box before hopping on a delivery he drove 385 feet over the inner fence in left-center field.

"It's a new role for me," observed Russell, who usually hits eighth.

Marshall set down Smith on strikes and Ted Simmons on a grounder to quell the upriising, then worked past a 70-minute rain delay and two singles in the eighth.

"Marshall's been great," John acknowledged. "I know if I was the manager I'd consider my job easy. All he has to do is get six or seven innings out of his starters, and Mike finishes up."

TORONTO (AP) — National Hockey League player Doug Favell announced Tuesday he will play his first game Friday night with the Philadelphia Wings of the National Lacrosse League.

Favell, who plays forward in lacrosse but goaltender for the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, has been working out with the Wings. He said he was given permission by Leafs general manager Jim Gregory to participate in the off-season activity.

BATTING—George Scott, Brewers, belted a three-run homer in the ninth inning to carry Milwaukee to 7-5 victory over the California Angels.

SEES ACE ON FILM

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — When Gene Sarazen made his hole-in-one in the 1973 British Open the five iron shot was shown on television. But Sarazen received a bigger surprise at the eighth annual Tony Lema memorial dinner here when the shot was shown on film.

Sarazen, the chairman of the Lema one-day tournament, said the British Open ace was the seventh of his long career. He also said a bigger thrill came in the 1935 Masters when he registered a double eagle. Sarazen says he can still hit the golf ball for distance except that where he once needed a four iron he now needs a four wood.

Jack Nicklaus has won the Masters golf tournament four times.

Pitching stands out

Leible Implement and Elks won Senior Babe Ruth games at VFW stadium Tuesday night. Leible won behind Mitchell Walker's second win of the season beating Optimist 10-1 and Elks downed Security National Bank 4-3 as Self outpitched Hewitt.

Walker gave up only two hits to Optimist as Leible teammates backed his hurling with a nine hit attack.

Leible wasted little time in jumping on Paxton, the losing pitcher as they scored two runs in the top of the first and four more in the top of the second to wrap up their second win of the season against no losses.

Elks and Security National Bank had a close battle all the way as Elks jumped on top with three runs in the top of the first inning. Security scored two in the third. After Elks went ahead 4-2 in the top of the fifth Security scored their final run in the sixth inning.

Nowell, Harts pitching tough

Nowell and Harts recorded rather easy wins in Jr. Babe Ruth league action Wednesday night. Nowell rode the two hit pitching of Montgomery to a 9-2 victory over Elliott- Newton while Harts got a one-hit pitching performance from Davidson for a 16-4 win over IBEW.

Harts pounded out 11 hits, including a double by Myrick and triples by Hampton and Ken Standridge.

Meramec No. 1

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Sophomore pitcher John Whitaker held Miami Dade North of Florida to three hits as undefeated Meramec of St. Louis, Mo., defeated the Floridians 6-4 Wednesday night to win the National Junior College Baseball Tournament.

It was the first championship for Meramec in four trips to the annual tourney.

Meramec jumped off to a three-run lead in the third inning on an error and two singles, one of them by shortstop Steve Viefhaus who was voted the tournament's most valuable player. Viefhaus, who scored one run and had one RBI in Wednesday's game, set a new tournament record with four home runs in five games.

Miami came back in the bottom of the third, scoring two runs on a homer by Carl Gardner. They took over the lead with two more runs in the fourth, one on an error and the other on a single.

In the fifth inning, Meramec scored two runs on a double by Mike Murphy and a single by Tony Barylski. Viefhaus scored the final run of the game in the ninth on a single by John Franz.

The losing pitcher, Paul Porowski, went eight and a third innings, giving up all six Meramec runs on 11 hits.

Matson wins shot

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, track fans, there will be another pro tour in 1975, and it will be run with Ben Jipcho but not John Carlos.

Jipcho, perhaps the world's leading distance runner, was enthusiastic in his praise of pro track after he climaxed the 1974 International Track Association season Wednesday night with a scintillating 3:56.6 clocking in the mile.

Carlos, on the other hand, was highly critical of the ITA after winning the 300-yard dash and finishing second in the 60.

"I am very thankful to the ITA for having brought pro track to the whole world," said Jipcho after running the fourth fastest indoor mile in history and the first sub-four minute performance on the pro tour this year. "I was thinking of leaving running until they came up with the money."

The slender but durable prison guard from Kenya was the leading money winner in his first year as a pro with earnings of $16,700. He won 18 of 18 of 20 races over one and two miles.

"This is my last race as a pro," snapped the angry Carlos after his triumph in the 300, the second of his two races. "The only people making money out of this are those in the ITA. I'm sick and tired of running for promoters. That's why I'm going to play football."

Earlier Wednesday, the New York Stars of the World Football League had announced the signing of the 6-foot-3, 195-pounder. Carlos flunked a previous tryout as a pro football player with the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles in 1970.

However, in 1971 and 1972, he was a wide receiver with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Meanwhile, Michael O'Hara, ITA president, assured followers of the pro sport there would be a third season.

A record ITA indoor crowd of 15.621 nearly filled Madison Square Garden and increased attendance for the year to 172,752 for 14 meets, an average of 12,332. Those figures, however, were swelled by crowds of 38,000 and 19,000 for two outdoor meets in Japan.

The ITA may split the season into indoor and outdoor campaigns next year,similar to the amateurs, and may run a total of 30 meets.

Meanwhile, Wyomia Tyua, two-time Olympic Chamdion, tied the women's world record for the 60-yard dash with a clocking of 6.5 seconds, a time she had matched twice previously.

Other winners included: J.J. Jackson in the 60-yard ash, with a time of 5.9 seconds; Olympic champion Rod Milburn in the 60-yard hurdles 6.9 seconds; George Young in the twomile in 8:49.0; Chris Fisher in the 880, 1:53.5; Lee Evans in the 440, 48.21; Randy Matson in the shot put, 70 feet, 1 inch Ed Caruthers in the high jump, 7-0, and Henry Hines in the long jump, 26-1¼.

Sikes explains new department functions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared in the Tuesday edition of the St. Louis Post- Dispatch. Alfred C. Sikes is formerly of Sikeston and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kendall Sikes of 507 N. Kingshighway, Sikeston.)

By FRED W. LINDECK
Missouri Political
Correspondent of the
Post- Dispatch

JEFFERSON CITY — Alfred C. Sikes says it is not true that he now answers to the name of CARL.

Sikes is the director of the Department of Community Affairs, who, on July 1, will officially become the director of the new Department of Consumer Affairs, Registration and Licensing. In the nature of government, the new department automatically became known as CARL.

But Sikes admits that whereas he used to spend a lot of time trying to explain what the Department of Community Affairs does, he now will also spend time trying to explain what CARL does.

Among the 14 new departments created in state reorganization, CARL is the conglomerate. No other department has had more separate functions assigned to it.

To try to simplify things, Sikes breaks the collection down into three categories: agencies that promote the state's economy, agencies that regulare business and protect the consumer, and agencies that license crafts and professions.

One of the objectives of reorganization was to reduce the number of functions that the governor had to supervise himself. Sikes, the man Gov. Christopher S. Bond chose to oversee all these operations, is one of Bond's most trusted political aids.

Sikes, 34, started as a campaigner for Attorney General John C. Danforth when Danforth was first elected in 1968. He became an assistant attorney general, and then was Danforth's campaign manager in his unsuccessful try for the United States Senate in 1970.

Then in 1972, Sikes managed Bond's victorious campaign, which ended almost three decades of Democratic domination of the state administration.

Based on this kind of confidence and close association, Bond is leaving in the hands of Sikes a knot of agencies that at any time can become the source of troublesome or embarrassing disputes.

Alfred C. Sikes

Under Sikes will be the Public Service Commission, which rules on rates and numerous other subjects involving consumers and utilities. There is also the Finance Division, which decides on awarding of bank charters.

Sikes will also have the Insurance Division, the Human Rights Commission, and 14 licensing boards that from time to time produce controversies such as that over the denial of a medical license to Dr. R. Bernard Finch, parollee from a murder conviction who came to Missouri from California.

In some cases, the agencies assigned to Sikes's department have independent powers. Many of them are boards or commissions that retain the power to determine their own policies.

But, in most instances, Sikes will have the authority to set the budgets for these agencies and in controlling the amount of money and staff they have to work with. Sikes acknowledges that he can affect how their polices are carried out.

The Public Service Commission has the independent authority to disagree with Sikes's budget decisions and take its case directly to the Legislature. But, in a majority of cases, Sikes has the power to fire an agency head should he dispute his allocation once it has been negotiated within the overall department budget request.

Sikes foresees potential problems. If someone ever comes to him protesting that the Division of Finance did not give him a bank charter, Sikes says he will listen tactifully, but his reply will be that the proper recourse is through the State Banking Board and the courts.

He said he would not try to infringe on the PSC's rate-making authority.

"But if a big controversy breaks out in insurance, I don't see any way I can avoid being drawn in. The fire truck is always there," Sikes said.

Ideally, action and policy should be determined by the agencies under his departmental roof, Sikes said. "But as a practical matter, the buck is going to stop at my desk," he adds. His function will be to rule on those disputes, and try to keep as many as possible from being thrown onBond's shoulders.

Sikes's salary will go up to $30,000, from the $21,500 he gets as head of the Department of Community Affairs. He said his principal personal interest in the new department will be in economic development because that is the area he has worked in at Community Affairs.

Community Affairs was always a nebulous type of department that few persons fully understood. It does the state and regional planning that the federal government demands before awarding grants, it helps local governments find federal aid money and it contains the Office of Aging and economic opportunity programs.

Some of these functions ended up in Sikes' new department, together with separate economic development agencies such as the Tourism Commission and the Division of Commerce and Industiral Development.

Sikes said he felt vulnerable about serving the first six months as department director because it will that long before the Legislature reconvenes and the Democratic- controlled Senate will consider his confirmation.

This would force him to get the new department started knowing that some act or decision could raise opposition in the Senate, Sikes said.

Moreover, he acknowledged the possibility that his appointment could be regarded as a reward by Bond for political services. But Sikes said he had tried to avert that suspicion by keeping politics out of his decisions whenever he was not functioning as a campaign manager.

Some people are motivated by getting people elected, or running for office themselves, and others are motivated by serving in the day - to - day operation of government," he said.

Sikes said his preferences have always been stronger in the latter field. He concluded he might run for public office some day, but said he was deterred by the sacrifice to his private life which this would entail.

The longest animal ever recorded is the giant jellyfish (Cyanea arctica), which is found in the northwest Atlantic Ocean. One specimen washed up on the coast of Massachusetts, c. 1865, had a bell 7½ feet in diameter and tentacles measuring 120 feet.

Senate wants commodity distribution to continue

Last week the Senate passed legislation I cosponsored which would continue the authority of the Department of Agriculture to purchase food and donate it to schools, day-care centers, charitable institutions, and supplemental food programs.

This legislation was needed immediately since the Administration intended to cancel donations of food to institutions by June 30, 1974. They would have ended donations to schools by June 30, 1975.

This cancellation was planned despite the severe blow it would be to the ability of school districts in Missouri to provide low- cost nutritious lunches to school children.

Witnesses from Missouri have testified before committees of the Senate that it would be impossible for local school districts to buy the quantity and quality of food that the Department of Agriculture can buy with an equivalent amount of money.

Costs to local school districts would inevitably be higher because they would buy in smaller quantities and would lack the capability that USDA has to make mass purchases when prices are at their lowest.

Elderly and Child Care Programs

But an even more immediate problem rests with institutions for the elderly and child care programs in Missouri. Some 208 public or nonprofit institutions in Missouri, serving over 19,000 needy persons, have been receiving donated commodities. Of these, 76 serve primarily children and 92 serve primarily the elderly. In fiscal 1973, these programs received commodities with a wholesale value of about $230,000.

The abrupt termination of donated foods this summer, as planned by the Department of Agriculture, would seriously handicap these institutions and child care programs in Missouri.

As Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Aging, I am especially concerned that nutrition programs for the elderly, recently inaugurated across the country under Title VII of the Older American Act would, under the Administration's plans, become ineligible for commodities after June of this year.

Commodity Distribution To be Permanent And Mandatory

The legislation passed by the Senate would make permanent and mandatory the authority to purchase non- surplus commodities where that is necessary to continue traditional levels of commodity donations to food assistance programs, including school lunch and other child nutrition programs, charitable institutions, supplemental food programs and disaster relief.

To keep up with inflation, the legislation would increase the value of commodities donated to schools from the current 7 cents per meal to 10 cents per meal and would require this figure to be adjusted annually in keeping with changes in the cost of food.

The legislation would also make permanent the authority of the states to serve reduced price lunches to children from families with incomes up to 75 per cent above the income poverty guidelines.

Accounts committee to cut employe payroll

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate Accounts Committee has decided to drop 37 employes from the Senate payroll until the next legislative session next January.

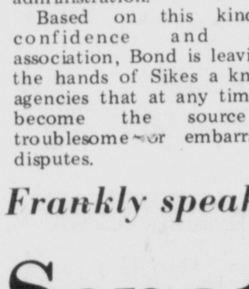

However, the employes are expected to be returned to the payroll for the Sept. 4 veto session.

The cuts were necessitated in part by Gov. Christopher S. Bond's veto of $473,112, from the $1,235,322 contingency (operations) fund.

Twenty of the employes are secretaries earning from $500 to $600 a month and who for the most part are second secretaries working in the senator's home district. The other employes include clerks, doorkeepers and the Senate chaplain.

Special school district vital to Pemiscot County

BRAGGADOCIO — The history of the Pemiscot County Special School District is a recent history. The need for its conception and further organization is very important to the county. The special district's goal is to help each student reach his maximum potential by providing programs that will be designed to meet his individual needs.

The Special Education Department of the Pemiscot County Special School District will make every effort to initiate new programs to meet the current needs of children, according to Supt. W. T. Robison, who said it will be the intention of the special district to assign students to the educational program that will best facilitate their needs.

The special district will continue with the work of the local schools to provide programs for those students who need all day special services. This is the program for educationally handicapped students who are already receiving special help.

The elementary students in this category will remain in their home district schools but will have a Pemiscot County Special District teacher. The secondary students in this area will be served at a separate school operated by the Special District.

The secondary school will be a departmentalized setting, including vocational education, home economics, industrial education, an athletic program and driver's education. The students will also have a regularly geared academic program designed for their individual needs.

The special district will also continue the ongoing speech services of the county schools. There will be a public school program in speech correction and a speech and language communications program for children in the special school district buildings.

No major changes will occur in the speech program. Students who need only speech services will continue to receive them at their home schools with a speech therapist employed by the Pemiscot County Special School district.

The special district will provide a program for children with learning disabilities. This will be a highly structured educational curriculum for children who have normal and above intelligence, but evidence specific learning disabilities.

Special education services for children with emotional and social maladjustment problems will be part of the Pemiscot County Special District. This program will be for children who may have average or above average intelligence, but will require teachers trained to work with the students' emotional problems.

The objective of this program is to assist the child to develop new patterns of emotional learning and to help the child in maintaining an acceptable level of academic and social functioning in the school at large.

The special district will employ a qualified teacher to work in the area of deaf education. This is a category that has been needed for some time in our county. Children who are deaf or have a significant hearing loss will receive additional needed services by the special district. Programs for deaf education will be designed and programmed for each child in that area.

Another new program that will be started by the special district is one for visually handicapped children. These students will be assisted by special district teachers who will be trained in working with visually handicapped children. The special district's assistance will range from tutorial help through provision of braille and large print textbooks and other materials.

Special programs for physically and orthopedically handicapped children also will be initiated by the special district. These are regular educational programs for children with physical disabilities which prohibit them from attending regular classes. Children will in all possible cases, be grouped according to age and academic achievement to give all an equal opportunity.

The special district will furnish teachers for homebound instruction. This will include students with illness or injury who will be homebound for one month or more.

The students at the state school at Hayward will come under the jurisdiction of the special district next year. This will continue to be an all day program. It is the overall goal of this program to continue to make every possible effort to help these children reach their maximum potential.

The teaching personnel of the Pemiscot County Special School District will consist of qualified teachers in the various disciplines of special education. All members of the staff will be highly interested in, and concerned for, the needs of the students enrolled in the special district.

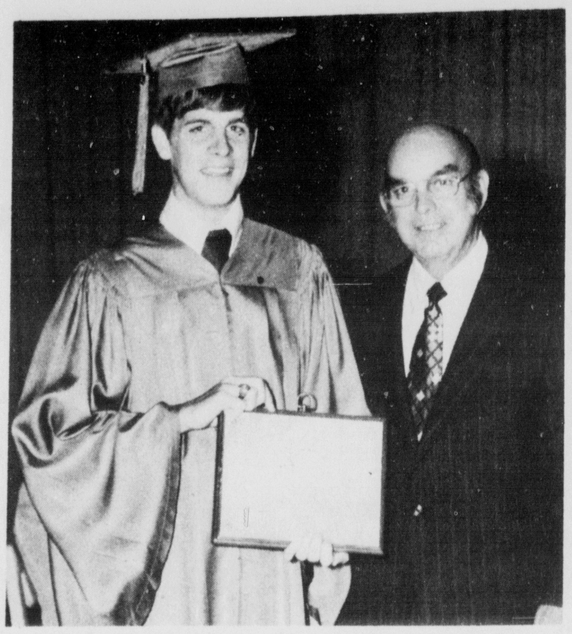

The main objective of education is to design and maintain programs that will meet and direct the student's individual abilities.

The basic idea that all children are not alike and that many different methods are needed to educate children has prompted educators and interested people in providing special programs to serve these very special students in our society.

The Pemiscot County Special School District plans to continue the past success of ongoing special education programs and hopes to expand these services to meet the needs of other exceptional children in the county.

Scholarship awarded

Madrid valedictorian receives scholarship

NEW MADRID — Horrell H. Townsend III, valedictorian of the 1974 New Madrid High School graduating class was presented the Bank of New Madrid $500 scholarship award by president Sam L. Hunter Jr. at commencement exercises Friday.

The award is made annually to one senior chosen from five nominees representing each high school in New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District.

Each school counselor recommended a nominee and their credentials were sent by Supt. Ray Melton to a selection committee at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau which made the final selection.

This year's nominees, in addition to Townsend, were Barbara Byerly of Matthews High School, Shirley Ann Drake of Lilbourn High School, Donna Klipfel of Portageville High School and Reatha Lewis of Parma High School.

Townsend completed high school with the school's highest possible grade- point average of 4.0 and is the first New Madrid High School student to receive the award since the scholarship was established in 1971.

In commending Townsend for his scholastic honors and school, church and community activities, Hunter stated "his achievements indicate that he is not only an excellent student, but a fine young citizen as well, who is an asset to his community."

Townsend plans to continue his education in the field of medicine. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Townsend Jr.

Nudist colony members may take up farming

HONOLULU (AP) — Obeying a judge's words to the letter, a group of local people plan to start farming in the nude.

The judge was only concerned about agriculture, but since the prospective tillers of the soil are members of the Hawaii Nudist Club, bib overalls are out of the question.

"It shouldn't be necessary, but if they want us to go farming, we can go farming,' George Muller said Wednesday.

Muller leases 247 acres of rural beachfront property, granting equal access to ducks, chickens and the 500 members of the club.

Trustees of the James Campbell estate, which owns the land, last week won a temporary injunction forbidding any nonagricultural use of the land.

Circuit Court Judge Norito Kawakami carefully limited his order to agricultural issues but added, "If they are there for nude farming, okay."

Club President Larry Beck announced the formation of an agricultural cooperative to grow watermelons, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes on 30 or 40 acres. Any profits were promised to nearby Kahuku Hospital.

Muller, himself a nudist, said he plans to retire from his job at a pineapple cannery next year and devote full time to farming.

The club moved onto the property more than two years ago, but Muller said trouble started after the club drew the attention of local news media.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I want to thank publicity one of the most courteous and most thoughtfull people I've ever met. Some one who will, can and has gone out of his way to help others that need his help. Even to the point of beyond his duty.

On a Thursday night a week or so ago our car broke down on I-55 approx. 12 miles south of Sikeston, as we were returning from Memphis, with our son who had undergone tests that proved he had a menigist infection. Tho r' contagious, he was sick. And in our need and desperation and over 30 miles from home, our Prince in Shining Armor, turned out to be Patrolman Gary Christman. He brought us all the way home, also called a wrecker for our car!

Wouldn't it be nice to Salute Gary and all others like him. For it is men like him that make our country a little more safe and pleasant.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Thank you.

MY BROTHER AND I
By: Gayle Roslen

When we were younger,
My brother and I.
For each other,
We would lie.

We were friends,
Best friends, that is.
Then one day I had my friends,
And he had his.

Now we fight all the time,
And unlike before, we never make deals.
We always say how much each other we hate,
And if we're not careful it may be too late,
To tell each other how we really feel.

I want him to know,
That I love him so.
And if God should ever take him away from me,
How very lonesome I would be.

I'm proud of him.
And all his fame,
Comes back to me,
When I say his name.

I want us to be friends,
My brother and I.
Without him and his love,
I think I would die.

"IN FLANDERS FIELD"
(a poem adapted to fit The Vietnam conflict and titled)--
"IN PRIVILEGED FIELD"

In Privileged Field the privileged grow
Between their mansions row on row
That mark their place —
And in the sky
the Jet Set still bravely singing fly
Scarce heard amid their cadillacs below.
The privileged are alive long days from now
Because of us they will live, feel dawn, see sunset glow,
Love and be loved because they live
In privileged field.

They will not take up our quarrel with the foe
Outside of privileged field more of us still grow.
To them from our failing hands they take the torch
To hold it high, but they were safe in their classrooms
And only took the torch after we had died.
Though they broke faith with us who died
They shall lose no sleep
In Privileged Field.

W.T. Woods,
Bertrand, Mo.

Lightning leaves 5 dead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lightning accompanying heavy thunderstorms has left five St. Louisarea people dead, four of them high school girls.

Police in suburban Manchester said the four teen-agers were apparently walking toward the John F. Kennedy High School Wednesday when lightning struck a large elm tree next to them.

The girls died "from a classical case of lightning strike— electrocution," said Dr. Roland Lowden of the St. Louis County Medical Examiner's office.

The victims were Diane Marie Jaas, 14, of Glendale, and Annette Marie Ruder, 15; Katherine Ohlsen, 15, and Margaret Zoellner, 16, all of Kirkwood.

"Its the first time in my 20 years on this job that I've seen four people killed at once by lightning," said Raymond Harris, county medical examiner.

The girls' slightly burned bodies were discovered by two boys bicycling through the area at about 4:15—five hours after the estimated time of death.

The fifth victim was Jacqueline Rozanski, 31, who died about eight hours after lightning struck a tree she was standing under on a north St. Louis County golf course.

DRAWING POWER is under test here as onlookers move through the Gold Coast Art Fair in Chicago. The ice cream cone eater looks a bit nonplussed. The couple seems to be interested in details.

"Double Cropping" Is the Secret of a Profitable Garden

To gain maximum value from a vegetable garden "double cropping" is essential. By "double cropping" we mean gaining two plantings to each garden row — one to mature in summer, the other in fall.

For example, spinach is an early crop — it requires sowing as early in the spring as possible, so it matures before hot weather sets in. This will leave a space for another planting later in the summer to mature in fall when cooler weather returns.

Peas are another crop that bear early and are finished by early summer. That same space can then be dug over and replanted with another row of broccoli, cauliflower or Brussels sprouts to mature during fall of the same year.

Corn reaches a peak in midsummer, and the space it occupies can be replanted with a fall crop of cabbage, lettuce, or broccoli.

Certain vegetable varieties do better as a fall crop than a spring or summer crop. These include broccoli, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts. They prefer to be planted in mid-summer so they mature during the cool weather of fall. Brussels sprouts planted this way are especially valuable, since the green sprouts can be picked into December over most of the United States when store prices for green vegetables are high.

Other vegetables take a long growing season to mature properly. These include leeks, pumpkins, winter squash, salsify and parsnips, so double cropping with these is not possible.

The best group of vegetables to grow in a home vegetable garden are those which mature reasonably early and stay productive over the entire gardening season, surviving a wide range of conditions. These super-productive vegetables are zucchini squash, chard, parsley, tomatoes and peppers.

Mrs. W. Burch of Paducah, Ky., attended the funeral of Mrs. James Nestor here Friday.

In the northeast corner of the Stallcup land on the Kingshighway road just south of the Wilson Park, is to be the location of Sikeston's new modern and up- to- date cemetery. Last Friday, A. A. Ebert and associates of St. Louis, came down and made a deal with L. M. Stallcup for the land. The laying out and platting of the cemetery will be done by the Joyce Surveying Co., of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. White returned Sunday from Excelsior Springs.

The Presbyterians organized a Sunday School in this city Sunday and enrolled about 20 members. W. M. Clifton was elected superintendent and Mildred Dowdy, secretary.

The case of the fun-loving husband

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Murray liked to go nightclubbing with clients and friends for alleged business reasons. And, when he got home, on each such occasion, his wife did some night clubbing of her own -- with a rolling pin.

As soon as he would tip-toe into the house, she'd let him have it. She'd batter him over the head with all the gusto of a nudist trying to swat a mosquito.

Finally, sporting more bumps on his head than a gypsy could possibly read in a year, Murray sued for a divorce, claiming cruel and inhuman treatment.

"It's either got to be the end of the marriage," he told the judge, "or it's going to be the end of me. I've been hit on the noggin so many times I'm beginning to think I've got a drum and bugle corp station in my head."

"Well, it's his own fault," responded his wife. "If my fun-loving husand would stop fooling around with other women, I'd stop clobbering him. He's not kidding anybody. When he goes nightclubbing, it's not for business. It's for monkey business. Any idiot knows that, including myself."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant fun- loving Murray a divorce?

This is how the jduge ruled: YES! The judge held, in effect, that while a husband may not be a paragon of virtue, a wife cannot go around beating him over the head and accusing him of unfaithfulness without proof.

(Based upon a 1962 Pennsylvania Superior Court Decision)

A Southern superstition warns that you should never put a letter in your girl friend's left hand, or your friendship will come to an end...on a bad note!
